TSN REPORT CARD

Coaching staff	A	Although the Cardinals benefited from a weak schedule last season, the team had no business winning seven games. Dave McGinnis and his staff extracted the most out of the youngest roster in the NFL. The staff returns intact this season and has more talent to work with.
Quarterbacks	C	Jake Plummer improved last season after two horrible years. He didn't force as many balls into coverage and was better at throwing it away when the play broke down. There isn't another experienced quarterback on the roster, so the club could be in trouble if Plummer goes down.
Running backs	C	Thomas Jones has failed to show he was worthy of the seventh overall pick in the 2000 draft, but he's made enough plays to encourage the coaches. He assumes the No. 1 job because Michael Pittman left for Tampa Bay. If Jones flops, the club is in trouble because his top two backups have never carried the ball in the NFL.
Receivers	B +	If David Boston has his mind right and is over his off-field problems, he's one of the best in the league. Not many cornerbacks can match up with a 6-foot-2, 235-pound receiver who can run. Starter Frank Sanders is reliable and No. 3 man MarTay Jenkins has great speed. Other than Boston, however, there are no game-breakers.
Offensive line	B +	The talent is there for this to be among the NFL's best, and the club has invested heavily in the front five. The interior linemen, center Mike Gruttadauria and guards Pete Kendall and Leonard Davis, are solid. The two tackles, Anthony Clement and L.J. Shelton, must live up to potential.
Defensive line	C -	There is more talent here than last season but it's still hard to see who's going to provide a consistent rush. DT Wendell Bryant, the first-round pick, will help, as will the return of end Kyle Vanden Bosch from knee surgery. The big question is at left end. Fred Wakefield, a rookie last season, probably will start.
Linebackers	B	MLB Ronald McKinnon is tough, but undersized. OLB Rob Fredrickson is a smart veteran but he struggled with a knee condition over the latter part of the 2001 season. Rookie Levar Fisher will push Raynoch Thompson for a starting job. Depth is a big concern.
Secondary	B	The Cardinals are relying on CB Duane Starks to play at an All-Pro level. There are questions on the other side, however. David Barrett likely will start but he'll be pushed by several other players, including Renaldo Hill and Mike Stone. Adrian Wilson will be a force at strong safety, and SS Kwamie Lassiter has some good years remaining.
Special teams	B	P Scott Player has played well the last two seasons, and K Bill Gramatica proved last year that he can make the big kicks. The return games, however, need to improve. Jenkins is a threat returning kicks if his mind is into it. And PR Arnold Jackson needs more help from his blockers.

TSN REPORT CARD

Coaching staff	B	Dan Reeves made significant improvements to his defensive staff by adding Wade Phillips and Emmitt Thomas. Offensive assistants George Sefcik and Gary Stevens retired, but no new offensive coordinator was named. Joe DeCamillis ranks among the top special teams coaches in the league.
Quarterbacks	B -	There is no question that Michael Vick is the starter, but there is no certainty that he will take the beating of a full season without missing one or more games. A more experienced backup than Doug Johnson should have been added.
Running backs	A	Finally, with the additions of Warrick Dunn and T.J. Duckett, the Falcons should have enough depth for Reeves' run-oriented offense. Maurice Smith should be kept; when healthy he was quite effective last year. Fullback Bob Christian has one or two more productive seasons.
Receivers	C -	Brian Finneran should thrive when finally given the opportunity to start, and Shawn Jefferson is a solid veteran who should set a strong example for such younger players as rookie Kahlil Hill. There is a great opportunity for a surprise to emerge as a deep threat. The team likely will add another veteran free agent in the summer.
Offensive line	C -	Todd Weiner was added as the starting right tackle, and his pass-blocking skills will be important since he will protect the blind side of Vick, a lefthander. If either Travis Claridge or rookie Martin Bibla can take a firm hold at left guard and Robert Garza can provide a more physical presence at center, the unit should be better.
Defensive line	C +	Several players will have to make adjustments to a three-man front. Ed Jasper may emerge as the starter at nose tackle. Jasper and Travis Hall could play end or nose tackle, but the other end is a major question. Brady Smith may be too small for a 3-4 end.
Linebackers	A -	This has to be the strength of the defense in a 3-4, and Keith Brooking will be a good starter as one inside linebacker. Patrick Kerney could thrive as a rush linebacker. A key is second-year player Matt Stewart, who needs to step up at the strongside spot.
Secondary	C	Look for a strong comeback from Ray Buchanan, who never found a comfort zone when given more liberties last season. Buchanan was beaten too often, but he also could have used better support from the safeties. If either Keith Lyle or Keion Carpenter can take over at free safety and Fred Weary or Allen Rossum can provide stability at nickel back, the unit should be above average.
Special teams	A	Rookie kicker Jay Feely was the surprise of training camp and a solid replacement for Morten Andersen, even though he lacks Andersen's consistency from beyond 40 yards. Punter Chris Mohr survived a midseason slump. The coverage teams should again be outstanding, and Rossum is an experienced return specialist.

TSN REPORT CARD

Coaching staff	C +	The rebuilding of this team caters to the strengths of head coach Brian Billick, who is a disciplinarian, motivator and extremely organized. But the Ravens also had several changes on their staff, including one at defensive coordinator. It's going to take some time for this situation to jell.
Quarterbacks	C -	Starter Chris Redman has big league potential, but is still unproven. The Ravens at least have a solid backup in Jeff Blake, but the supporting cast for both of these starters is questionable. Blake, though, can make more big plays in the offense because he is more mobile.
Running backs	D +	Jamal Lewis is one of the best in the league when he is healthy, but the Ravens aren't sure he has fully recovered from a knee injury last season. The Ravens need Lewis to take some pressure off an unproven quarterback and receivers. After Lewis, there is no quality backup. The fullback position is questionable as well.
Receivers	D	The Ravens are toying with a dangerous combination; no speed and no size. The team's two top receivers, Brandon Stokley and Travis Taylor, have limited experience. Blake can throw the long ball, but has no one to go deep. The Ravens will use a ball control passing offense. This will be a true West Coast offense.
Offensive line	C	Last year, this unit was a major weakness. With four starters returning in 2002, the group has to take charge and lead. They should be able to run block well, but the Ravens have to prove they can pass block and pick up blitzes, especially in the middle of the line.
Defensive line	D	The Ravens lack size and depth. The starting defensive line averages about 280 with end Michael McCrary at 250 and nose guard Kelly Gregg at 285. The team will need to rely on quickness and leverage to stay in most games and not get pushed around.
Linebackers	C +	The Ravens have two Pro Bowlers at four of the positions in middle man Ray Lewis, and strong side guy Peter Boulware. But teams will go after the weaknesses, which are second-year player Ed Hartwell in the middle, and Adalius Thomas, a former defensive end, on the outside. Hartwell should continue to improve. The jury will be out much longer for Thomas.
Secondary	C -	This group has excellent potential, but lacks experience. They might be a year or two away from playing extremely well. CB Chris McAlister is the only one among the group who has substantial playing time. Rookie safety Ed Reed, the No. 1 draft pick, has speed, size and playmaking ability. Safety Anthony Mitchell can play the thumper role. CB Gary Baxter has to get better quickly in his transition from safety to corner.
Special teams	C -	The Ravens have a new coach, new punter and new return specialists, so don't expect the same results that made these units one of the best in the NFL the last two years. The team has too many inexperienced players to make a difference this year, but the Ravens have two exciting specialists in P Dave Zastudil and PR Lamont Brightful.

TSN REPORT CARD

Coaching staff	B	Head coach Gregg Williams has brought a tougher attitude to this team. Offensive coordinator Kevin Gilbride is a major addition to the staff. Defensive coordinator Jerry Gray should have his troops on the same page in his second year. Some of the younger assistants still must prove themselves.
Quarterbacks	A	Drew Bledsoe gives the offense instant credibility it lacked under Rob Johnson. Bledsoe has what it takes to be a great one, but can he live up to the high expectations? Alex Van Pelt is a solid backup who played well as a starter last year.
Running backs	C +	Travis Henry and Shawn Bryson both want to prove he can be an every-down player. Henry has the pure running skills, but Bryson is bigger and faster. FB Larry Centers is coming off a Pro Bowl year, but will his role diminish in the new offense?
Receivers	A	Eric Moulds and Peerless Price are a dynamic duo. Second-round pick Josh Reed brings a resume of great production. Reggie Germany and Jeremy McDaniel are talented with good size. TE Jay Riemersma is a terrific receiver, but will be pushed hard by free agent Dave Moore, a better blocker.
Offensive line	B	Suddenly, a weakness has become a strength. No. 1 draft pick Mike Williams and second-year player Jonas Jennings should make great bookend tackles for the next decade. Five-time Pro Bowl LG Ruben Brown shows no signs of slowing down. C Bill Conaty and RG Jerry Ostroski played well when healthy. Free agent Ts Trey Teague and Marcus Price could start for a lot of teams.
Defensive line	C	DT Pat Williams had a Pro Bowl-type season. Another one like it could land him in Hawaii. Someone needs to emerge at the other tackle spot to take double-teams off Williams. DE Aaron Schobel had a good rookie year, but will former No. 1 pick Erik Flowers ever blossom? Rookie Ryan Denney is ready if he doesn't.
Linebackers	A	Getting MLB London Fletcher makes up for the loss of Sam Cowart in free agency. ROLB Eddie Robinson should be an improvement over Jay Foreman, who was traded. LOLB Keith Newman is an outstanding run defender and may be the team's best pass rusher. MLB Brandon Spoon and OLBs DaShon Polk and Fred Jones provide depth.
Defensive backs	B	Antoine Winfield and Nate Clements are terrific lock-down cover corners and Chris Watson is a dependable No. 3. SS Billy Jenkins is a good fit for this defense. Free safety could be a season-long issue unless Travares Tillman or maybe Pierson Prioleau steps up.
Special teams	C	After a couple of failures, the Bills got it right with K Mike Hollis. Erratic P Brian Moorman still has his job, but for how long? Charlie Rogers gives the Bills a legitimate big-play return specialist. Kick and punt coverage units showed improvement last year.

TSN REPORT CARD

Coaching staff	B	John Fox is in his first head coaching job at any level, but he brings energy and communication skills this team desperately needs. Fox is a veteran defensive coach and he'll be a big help to first-time defensive coordinator Jack Del Rio, who established a solid reputation as a linebackers coach in Baltimore. Fox's best move was hiring veteran Dan Henning as the offensive coordinator. Henning's presence should provide a big boost in the development of second-year quarterback Chris Weinke.
Quarterbacks	C -	Look for Weinke to make great strides after spending his rookie year without much help in an offensive system that wasn't tailored to his skills. Henning will surround Weinke with a strong running game and allow him to throw downfield. Weinke needs to improve his accuracy and decision making, but those things will come with time.
Running backs	C +	Lamar Smith, who has been a 1,000-yard rusher with Miami, will open the season as the feature back. He's a durable inside runner, but isn't a breakaway threat. Rookie DeShaun Foster should get more playing time as the season goes on because he's a versatile runner and can catch passes. Either Brad Hoover or rookie Kyle Johnson has to step forward as a strong blocker to win the fullback job.
Receivers	C	Muhsin Muhammad has been a top-notch receiver, but he's coming off a disappointing season. It would help Muhammad greatly if Patrick Jeffers can get healthy and take away some of the double teams. Steve Smith, who excelled as a return man as a rookie last season, will get more time as a receiver because of his breakaway speed. Tight end Wesley Walls is coming off major knee surgery, but the 36-year-old still is one of the league's best pass catchers.
Offensive line	B	Veterans Todd Steussie, Kevin Donnalley and Jeff Mitchell make this unit one of the team's strongest points. Right tackle Chris Terry and left guard Jamar Nesbit continue to make strides. The line did a solid job in pass protection last year, but this season's challenge will be to open holes for a running game that will be the focal point of the offense.
Defensive line	C	If rookie defensive end Julius Peppers is as good as everyone expects, the line could suddenly be great. But it's unrealistic to expect Peppers to be dominant right away. Still, he's instantly better than anyone that played the position last year. Right end Mike Rucker also should benefit from Peppers' presence. Veteran Sean Gilbert and second-year pro Kris Jenkins have to be more active in stopping the running game.
Linebackers	C +	Fox put the emphasis on speed at this position and moved Dan Morgan from the outside to the middle. Morgan has the strength to stuff the middle and the speed to get outside. Strong side linebacker Mark Fields may be the quickest of the linebackers and will help in pass coverage. Rookie Will Witherspoon could start on the weak side if Hannibal Navies continues to have problems staying healthy.
Secondary	D -	Strong safety Mike Minter is solid, but nobody else is. Free safety Deon Grant has some potential, but struggled mightily in his first season as a starter. The cornerback situation is even worse after the release of starters Doug Evans and Jimmy Hitchcock. Free agent pickup Terry Cousin probably will start at one spot. Fred Vinson and DeRon Jenkins will compete for the other spot, but neither is a sure thing.
Special teams	A	This is the team's strongest area. Punter Todd Sauerbrun and kickoff and punt returner Steve Smith went to the Pro Bowl last season. Kicker John Kasay and long snapper Jason Kyle are very steady. The coverage units were excellent last year and should be even better with Michael Bates returning after spending last season with Washington.

TSN REPORT CARD

Coaching staff	A	Dick Jauron was coach of the year during a 13-3 season and did an even better job of keeping the focus right the year before. The players respect him and his approaches and they play hard for him. Coordinators Greg Blache and John Shoop have grown into their jobs and are excellent game planners.
Quarterbacks	B	Jim Miller gets the most out of his team and offsets physical limitations with exceptional leadership and a sense of the game that commands the offense. Chris Chandler gives the Bears a backup who can win games outright. Both have durability doubters, but with receivers improving, both can do serious damage.
Running backs	A	Anthony Thomas was rookie of the year and that was without starting the first quarter of the season and missing preseason time with injury. He is on his way to becoming one of the premier every-down backs in the NFC. Leon Johnson scored once every five times he touched the ball.
Receivers	C +	Marty Booker is one of the NFC's best but David Terrell needs to justify his No. 8 selection in the 2001 draft. Booker works the whole field and is part of the franchise foundation. Dez White showed flashes but needs the kind of second-to-third year jump that Booker put on last year.
Offensive line	A	There is no better pass protecting group in the NFL and that from a group whose real forte is run blocking. Olin Kreutz is an elite-level center and RT James Williams and LG Rex Tucker were Pro Bowl-level players. RG Chris Villarrial is solid in all phases, with the only question being how good LT Marc Colombo will be in his first season.
Defensive line	B +	They are not a sack brigade but no one ran on the Bears' front. Ted Washington just keeps getting better with age and Phillip Daniels is one of the better all-around ends against both the run and pass. How well rookie Alex Brown develops as a pass rusher is the key to the 2002 draft.
Linebackers	A	Only the Redskins may have better linebackers. Brian Urlacher is an every-down middle linebacker, SLB Rosevelt Colvin is the team's best edge rusher, and Warrick Holdman is Urlacher's equal in some eyes. Mike Caldwell as the No. 4 makes this group deep as well as talented.
Secondary	B -	S Mike Brown is one of the NFL's emerging stars and is part of the defense's soul. R.W. McQuarters finally got his chance to start and prove that the 49ers made a mistake; now he is the No. 1 corner and will gamble intelligently. A key to the defensive season is how well the Bears fill in for departed CB Walt Harris and SS Tony Parrish.
Special teams	B	Returns have been a problem for several years but the coverage of Brad Maynard's punts is exceptional and he is one of the NFC's best. K Paul Edinger needs to deepen his kickoffs but is consistent; he's a good kicker to have with games on the line. If the Bears could return a kickoff more than 38 yards, the offense would have some breathing room.

TSN REPORT CARD

Coaching staff	C	Dick LeBeau, who understands a team wins by running the ball and playing solid defense, has to do a better job of unifying not only the players but the coaching staff. It doesn't matter if one unit does well. If the team loses, everybody does. The position coaches need to be concerned about the team as a whole, not just their area of expertise. The losing won't end until the selfishness ends.
Quarterbacks	D	Jon Kitna and Gus Frerotte are streaky passers who have good and bad moments. For all of his determination, Kitna has the reputation of making one critical mistake each game that costs his team. He has to quit forcing passes that aren't there. Frerotte lacks foot speed, but makes good decisions and shows excellent arm strength. Akili Smith is often injured and hasn't developed, while the jury is still out on inexperienced Scott Covington.
Running backs	A	Corey Dillon, a bruising runner with a devastating stiff-arm, deserves his place among the NFL's elite. He's improved his speed, blocking and pass-catching and can now be called a complete back. Brandon Bennett is the most solid backup, but watch for Rudi Johnson. His balance and power make him a real threat.
Receivers	B -	There's all kinds of talent here, but there's a problem. There's only one ball to go around and two guys—Peter Warrick and Chad Johnson—want it on every play. Johnson has a chance to unseat Darnay Scott as the deep threat and Warrick's strength is working the middle of the field. Look for Danny Farmer and T.J. Houshmandzadeh to get more involved. Matt Schobel provides the missing ingredient—a quality tight end.
Offensive line	B +	With the addition of first-round LT Levi Jones, look for the Bengals to go back to doing what they do best, running the ball. Jones and RT Willie Anderson give the team devastating bookends to protect Kitna and pave the way for Dillon. The massive, physical inside trio of C Rich Braham, LG Matt O'Dwyer and RG Mike Goff know each other well. That continuity will pay nice dividends.
Defensive line	B	This isn't the biggest unit in the league, but it's a quick group that has developed a reputation for disrupting an offense's rhythm. Tackles Tony Williams and Oliver Gibson get good penetration, allowing RE Justin Smith and LE Reinard Wilson to swoop in on the quarterback. The key is staying injury free because depth could be a problem.
Linebackers	A	Having veterans Takeo Spikes, Brian Simmons and Steve Foley together for the fifth straight season makes this position the defense's No. 1 area of strength. The trio can almost play blindfolded because they all know each other's moves, tendencies and nuances. All three are fast, physical players who are skilled at filling gaps, staying in their lanes, getting off blocks and chasing down plays from the backside.
Secondary	D	Adding veteran LCB Jeff Burris and drafting FS Lamont Thompson gives the secondary a boost, but this unit still has a lot to prove because it lacks star quality. The coaching staff addressed depth concerns at safety, but the corners must hold up on the outside and get more interceptions for the defense to be called a true big-play unit.
Special teams	C -	Drafting K Travis Dorsch in the fourth round signals the end of the Neil Rackers Era, which lasted two turbulent seasons. The tree-tall Dorsch brings a powerful leg into Paul Brown Stadium. He also must bring accuracy and consistency. Nick Harris has settled in as the punter. Now the Bengals must find a kickoff returner to match the one-two punch of punt returners Warrick and Houshmandzadeh.

TSN REPORT CARD

Coaching staff	A	Butch Davis was the reason why this franchise did an about-face last season and went from being a laughingstock to a team that, after 10 games, held the third and final AFC wild-card spot. There's no reason to believe that his influence and leadership will lessen this season.
Quarterbacks	B	Tim Couch is the quarterback who can help get the Browns to the playoffs. He made strides last season and will continue that this season as the cast of characters around him has improved. He can make all the throws. Now he has to do it consistently and do a better job of seeing the field. It's put up or shut up time.
Running backs	C +	William Green will help this group immensely. Now the Browns finally have the top-flight back that every good offense needs. In addition, they finally have a competent backup in James Jackson. Because of fatigue and the injury factor, you've got to have two guys to be successful. In Jamel White, the Browns have a quality third-down pass receiver.
Receivers	C +	Finally, Kevin Johnson will have some help in an improved Quincy Morgan, Andre Davis, JaJuan Dawson and Andre King. Morgan and Dawson could really blossom. At tight end, the Browns will be better, but they still don't have a guy they know they can count on. Darnell Sanders has ability, but he's just a rookie. Rickey Dudley is talented, too, but he's been inconsistent going back to his Ohio State days.
Offensive line	C	That may not sound like much of a grade, but when you consider how bad the line has been the last three years, it's almost as if this new group has qualified for membership in the National Honor Society. If RG Tre Johnson stays healthy, which he has not been able to do in his career, the line's play, especially in run blocking, will really improve.
Defensive line	A -	The Browns are one player away from possibly having a dominant line. Though injured last season, right end Courtney Brown has the ability to be one of the best. Left end Kenard Lang will be better against the run than was Keith McKenzie last season. Tackle Gerard Warren has unlimited potential, but the other tackle, Mark Smith, is a journeyman. He is holding everybody back. The Browns have good depth.
Linebackers	A -	The Browns have used free agency to completely rework their linebacking corps the last two years, turning a big weakness into a strength. With weak-sider Dwayne Rudd (in 2001) and middle man Earl Holmes (2002) joining strong-sider Jamir Miller, who last year became the team's first Pro Bowl representative, the Browns now have three solid starters. The arrival of draft picks Ben Taylor, Andra Davis and Kevin Bentley give the team depth for the first time.
Secondary	B	FS Robert Griffith in free agency makes all the difference in the world. He gives the Browns a hard-hitting playmaker to man the middle in the back end of their defense. His presence will mean SS Earl Little won't have to do so much and it may keep him from wearing down again. CB Daylon McCutcheon is the team's top cover man and its best tackler. Anthony Henry, last year's rookie sensation, is ready to step in for Corey Fuller once he slows down. Watch young subs Lewis Sanders, a cornerback, and safety Michael Jameson.
Special teams	C	The Browns have two of the best in the game at their position in punter Chris Gardocki and place kicker Phil Dawson. Gardocki has been the team MVP the last three years. Dawson made the most progress of anyone on the club in 2001. Ryan Kuehl may be the top long snapper in the league. But the Browns desperately need draft pick Andre Davis to come through as a kick and punt returner, two areas that were huge weaknesses the last three seasons. If so, then this grade goes up. If not, it goes down.

TSN REPORT CARD

Coaching staff	B +	Following consecutive 5-11 seasons, this is the year Dave Campo must compete for the playoffs in December. He has made wholesale changes on defense to upgrade the talent and add play-makers. He kept the offense intact, adding only coordinator Bruce Coslet and keeping the personnel the same. Campo's players believe in him and he gets the most out of his talent. Now, he has to get some wins.
Quarterbacks	C -	Quincy Carter will get a chance to prove he has the skills to take Dallas to the playoffs by managing the game, eliminating mistakes and using his running ability to make big plays. There isn't anyone to challenge him this season, though Chad Hutchinson may be up to the task next season.
Running backs	C +	Emmitt Smith should become the NFL's all-time leading rusher this season, then the focus will quickly shift to whether Troy Hambrick is a capable replacement. FB Robert Thomas, the toast of the town last season, is on the bubble entering training camp because Terry Witherspoon can do the same job for less money.
Receivers	C	This is the season Dallas must get its money's worth from Joey Galloway and Rocket Ismail. They have an innovative play-caller in Coslet, who likes to throw the ball deep and will make it a point to keep each of them involved in the offense. The Cowboys still need Ken-Yon Rambo, Darrin Chiaverini or Reggie Swinton to become a valuable possession receiver.
Offensive line	B -	The only question mark is whether center Matt Lehr, a fifth-round pick last season, is ready to start every week. He must handle the line adjustments and provide running lanes between the tackles for Smith, who is no longer consistently effective running outside. Flozell Adams and Solomon Page will be free agents at the end of the season, so each must play at a high level to get the millions they want.
Defensive line	B	If La'Roi Glover turns in his standard performance and Ebenezer Ekuban can shake the injury bug that has plagued him the past two season, the Cowboys could have one of the best defensive lines in the league. Ekuban, drafted to be a pass-rusher, is the key. If he gets 10 sacks, Dallas will be a force on defense.
Linebackers	B	The Cowboys signed Kevin Hardy because they believe he can be a big-time pass-rusher who forces other teams to alter their game plan to deal with him. The Cowboys will use him at defensive end and rush him from either linebacker spot. With better players on the defensive line, Dat Nguyen should be even more productive than he was last season.
Secondary	B -	Darren Woodson provides the veteran savvy and the addition of Roy Williams gives Dallas a big-play performer in the secondary. The Cowboys played soft on the corners last season because they didn't think their corners could consistently play bump-and-run or prevent the deep ball. Better cornerbacks means Dallas can be more aggressive this season.
Special teams	B	Dallas gave deep snapper Jeff Robinson a $1.1 million signing bonus because they don't want to lose games because of poor snaps. He's supposed to be one of the game's best and his presence should greatly reduce the number of blocked kicks (six) that Dallas allowed last season. K Tim Seder is consistent and accurate inside 40 yards and P Micah Knorr seemed out of whack last year because he was so concerned about the poor snaps. Swinton was one of the league's best kickoff returners, though he fumbled three times.

TSN REPORT CARD

Coaching staff	B +	Last year, Mike Shanahan and offensive coordinator Gary Kubiak lost their magic touch. The offense, hampered by injuries at the skill positions, was stale and ineffective. With new weapons on board, look for the offense to be near the top again. And, despite two poor seasons in the last three years, Shanahan remains among the league's elite. Under coordinator Ray Rhodes, Denver's simplified defense should get better and better. It's young, aggressive and fast.
Quarterbacks	B -	The pressure on starter Brian Griese will be intense. Make no mistake about it, this is his make-or-break season. He doesn't have a big arm, but he understands the nuances of Shanahan's system and he's very accurate. He must prove he's got leadership skills when it counts. The backup situation is suspect. Veteran Steve Beuerlein has a starter's skills, but his injured elbow is a worry. Talented third-year player Jarious Jackson remains a project.
Running backs	B	Terrell Davis says he's truly healthy, for the first time since the start of the 1999 season. He'll never be the T.D. of old, but he can still be an effective feature back. Rookie Clinton Portis is intriguing and gives Denver pure speed in the backfield. He'll get some carries, especially if Denver trades the oft-injured Olandis Gary. A big question mark is how converted tailback Mike Anderson will adjust to his new role as fullback. He's no Howard Griffith, but he's big, strong and willing.
Receivers	A	Mix the return of future Hall of Fame TE Shannon Sharpe, with a healthy Ed McCaffrey, dependable Pro Bowler Rod Smith and the speed of first-round draft choice Ashley Lelie, and the Broncos will cook up one of the top receiver corps in the league. They also have veteran Rob Moore and second-year player Kevin Kasper, a workout fiend who will challenge for the No. 3 receiver job.
Offensive line	B -	Outside of Griese's performance, this is the biggest question mark facing the team. Denver's still searching for an effective left tackle. Matt Lepsis, who will move over from the right side, has the tools, but it will take time for him to learn. Former Falcon Ephraim Salaam will be decent at right tackle, but hardly dominant. Denver is solid at center with Tom Nalen and at right guard with Dan Neil. It's time for LG Lennie Friedman to prove why the Broncos drafted him in the second round in '99.
Defensive line	B +	Moving Pro Bowl T Trevor Pryce to left end is a master stroke. He's big and quick and will be in quarterbacks' faces often. Lional Dalton, a free agent from Baltimore, and Chester McGlockton give the Broncos nearly 700 pounds of beef in the middle. Right end is the question mark. Denver needs a consistent force there. Kavika Pittman isn't the answer, but second-year players Reggie Hayward and Paul Toviessi could be.
Linebackers	B +	SLB Bill Romanowski has taken his bad-boy act to Oakland. His leadership and nastiness will be missed. His replacement, third-year Bronco Ian Gold, has star potential. He's undersized and could get overpowered, but blockers have to catch him first. MLB Al Wilson and John Mobley on the weak side are solid, not spectacular. Veteran Terry Killens provides versatility and depth. If rookie free agent Jashon Sykes' neck holds up, he will be a big-time player.
Secondary	B -	If there is a hole in the defense, it's in the secondary. CBs Denard Walker and Deltha O'Neal will be even better this year. SS Kenoy Kennedy is not a big playmaker, but he's consistent and a decent hitter. The big question is free safety. Izell Reese, the former Cowboy, is a decent cover man, but he's not the big hitter you want at free safety. It makes sense to switch CB Willie Middlebrooks to safety, but last year's first-round pick has to get healthy first. The bottom line: someone needs to emerge as a dominant player.
Special teams	A +	Jason Elam, the best pressure-kicker in the league, was slapped with the franchise tag. He's not happy about that, but he's too much of a professional to let that affect him. P Tom Rouen, after a terrible 2000 season, was very good last year and will be again in 2002. With O'Neal returning punts and Kasper sprinting up field with kickoffs, Denver's return game is a great weapon. Also, keep an eye on speedy rookie Herb Haygood. All in all, one of the top units in the NFL.

TSN REPORT CARD

Coaching staff	B	Even with injuries and losses mounting last season, Marty Mornhinweg proved that he could get the most out of an offense, and his game-day decisions, from play-calling to halftime adjustments, are very good. There are still questions, though, about whether new defensive coordinator Kurt Schottenheimer can iron out that unit's problems.
Quarterbacks	D	With the drafting of Joey Harrington, Mike McMahon is living on borrowed time and he knows it. Having a million-dollar bonus baby looking over your shoulder isn't the ideal situation to groom a young quarterback. Harrington might need more than one year to get ready, especially if he's splitting practice time in camp with McMahon.
Running backs	B	James Stewart doesn't have game-breaking speed, but he is reliable and was a rock for Detroit's offense last year, averaging 4.8 yards per carry. Lamont Warren proved to be a steady backup while fullback Cory Schlesinger is coming off a career year. Schlesinger's role should grow this year, giving the offense more options.
Receivers	C	The potential for big plays is there on every down, but so is the possibility of a dropped pass or fumble. Free agents Bill Schroeder and Az Hakim both arrive in Detroit with labels of inconsistency. Germane Crowell must prove he's completely recovered from off-season surgery to both knees.
Offensive line	C	This group will benefit from staying together from the end of last season and the problems with chemistry shouldn't be there this time around. The left side is solid with Jeff Backus and Tony Semple, but guard Brenden Stai and tackle Stockar McDougle must get better on the right side.
Defensive line	A	Even with a question mark at right defensive end, where the Lions are likely to use a platoon system, they're very strong at the other three positions. Robert Porcher is in the prime of his career and is firmly established as a Pro Bowl player while tackles Shaun Rogers and Luther Elliss will dominate teams on the inside.
Linebackers	C	Chris Claiborne and Barrett Green were both thrust into new roles last year because of the injury situation and they both performed well at times, but had bouts of inconsistency. They should be much improved now that they'll have the benefit of a full training camp.
Secondary	D -	Brian Walker proved to be a solid strong safety with the Dolphins, but the Lions will probably switch him to free safety because they also signed free agent Corey Harris to play the strong side. Terry Fair has to rebound from a rough year. The Lions are still desperately trying to add more speed and depth at cornerback.
Special teams	A -	Jason Hanson is expected to rebound from an uncharacteristic shaky season while punter John Jett is solid in all areas. The coverage and return units have always been strong under coach Chuck Priefer and should get even better with a greater emphasis this off-season on increasing team speed.

TSN REPORT CARD

Coaching staff	B +	Mike Sherman has created an environment in which the players seem to stay on an even keel and not suffer peaks and valleys. He has an outstanding defensive staff that allows him to focus his attention on offense.
Quarterbacks	A -	The backup position is a little shaky, but considering Brett Favre hasn't needed one the past decade, it isn't much of an issue. Favre has shown no signs of slowing down and could put up big numbers with an improved receiving corps.
Running backs	A -	Depth is the only mark against this unit. Ahman Green has become one of the most explosive and durable runners in the NFL and he has a solid blocking fullback in front of him in William Henderson. Both players are capable receivers and pass blockers.
Receivers	C	Right now, it's all potential. Terry Glenn could be a superstar in this offense, but must show he has his head on straight. Robert Ferguson has a lot to prove after a wasted year, Javon Walker is a drop-prone rookie and Charles Lee and Donald Driver haven't proved to be starting caliber. TE Bubba Franks is very solid and backup TE David Martin could be a sleeper.
Offensive line	B	There's experience, size and athletic ability. And this is the third year that four of the five starters have been together. This group isn't dominating, but it protects Favre and effectively runs the traps and sweeps that are a big part of the offense.
Defensive line	B	The addition of Joe Johnson means everything to a team that led the NFC in sacks last year but faltered against the run. Now the defense has two stout, run-stopping ends (Johnson and Vonnie Holliday) and two 300-pound tackles (Gilbert Brown and Cletidus Hunt) to plug up the middle. Kabeer Gbaja-Biamila is just coming into his own and should be a force again off the edge.
Linebackers	C	The middle position isn't critical in this defense because much of the action is steered toward weakside linebacker Nate Wayne. But coverage ability is critical and if second-year pro Torrance Marshall can't handle it, there could be problems. There is very little veteran depth and this position could become a weak spot on defense.
Secondary	B +	The acquisition of cornerbacks over the years has really benefited the depth at this position. S Darren Sharper and CB Mike McKenzie are impact players who should have more opportunities with a better defensive line in front of them. The other safety position is a question mark because the aging LeRoy Butler is coming off a shoulder injury. Nickel backs Tod McBride, Bhawoh Jue and Antuan Edwards allow for a lot of options.
Special teams	C +	K Ryan Longwell has to rebound from a lousy season and P Josh Bidwell has to perform better in clutch situations. The return game is unsettled because Allen Rossum is gone and there are no experienced replacements. There's enough young talent to provide good coverage units, but a true leader might be missing from the group.

TSN REPORT CARD

Coaching staff	A	The Texans will have the youngest team in the league, and teaching will be just as important as motivating and putting players in position to succeed. Dom Capers is the right man for the job, having enjoyed great success with the expansion Carolina Panthers. His staff has over 100 years of NFL coaching experience.
Quarterbacks	B -	Kent Graham wasn't the Texans' first choice for a veteran quarterback to help groom David Carr, but he's not a bad second option. Graham has the right temperament to help Carr transition into the starting job, and all indications are that Carr has the tools to eventually be a franchise-type quarterback.
Running backs	B	James Allen has been a productive back when given an opportunity, and the Texans assured him he would get a chance to jump-start his career. Because Allen is not the long-term answer at running back, the Texans drafted Jonathan Wells, who will push for the starting job. The competition will benefit both backs.
Receivers	C	This is the biggest unknown on the offensive side of the ball because none of the primary receivers—Corey Bradford, Jabar Gaffney or Jermaine Lewis—have been No. 1 receivers in the NFL. They all have big-play ability, but until they step up and meet this new challenge, the jury is out. The depth at receiver leaves something to be desired.
Offensive line	A -	The Texans have accumulated more quality and more depth in the offensive line than any other position on the roster. Because of the nature of offensive lines, this unit might need a little time to jell, but if Tony Boselli recovers fully from surgery on both shoulders, this will be a very strong group.
Defensive line	C	Beyond Gary Walker and Seth Payne, the Texans have question marks on the defensive line. The left defensive end position is open, although Jabari Issa looks like the front runner. There isn't much depth, although that could change if draft picks Charles Hill and Ahmad Miller pan out.
Linebackers	D	It's almost impossible for an expansion team to put all the pieces into place in one season; inevitably, there is going to be an area of the team that needs some serious upgrading. For the Texans, that position is linebacker. Jamie Sharper has Pro Bowl ability, and he joins Jay Foreman in what should be a serviceable inside tandem. Kailee Wong is trying to transition from middle linebacker to outside linebacker and Greg Jones never has been a starter. There is no depth.
Secondary	B	The situation at cornerback is very good with Aaron Glenn and Marcus Coleman as starters and Jason Simmons and Jacoby Shepherd serving as backups. Rookie DeMarcus Faggins eventually could work into the mix. The safeties are experienced, but unspectacular. Fifth-round draft pick Ramon Walker is someone to keep an eye on.
Special teams	B	Special teams can be somewhat unpredictable, but the Texans are not without weapons. Jermaine Lewis has been one of the best return specialists in the NFL for years, and Kris Brown is one of the best young kickers in the league despite last year's NFL-leading 14 missed field goals. Veteran Chad Stanley appears to be the front runner for the punter's job, although training camp competition is expected.

TSN REPORT CARD

Coaching staff	B	One of the youngest teams in the NFL should embrace Tony Dungy's calm demeanor and effective cover-2 defensive scheme. Offensive coordinator Tom Moore remains a mad scientist with a lot of volatile components. Ron Meeks is in his first year as a defensive coordinator, but is a proven teacher of young talent.
Quarterbacks	A -	Peyton Manning is hellbent on showing 2001 (23 interceptions) was an aberration. He prides himself on efficiency and productivity, and should return to his Pro Bowl form of 1999-2000. If an injury slows the franchise QB, Brock Huard has the ability to hold the fort in the short term.
Running backs	A	If Edgerrin James makes a full recovery from a knee injury that forced him to miss the final 12 games of the 2001 season, the backfield is loaded. Remember Dominic Rhodes and the 1,104 yards and 9 TDs he collected as a rookie? If James encounters a setback, Rhodes is capable of carrying the load.
Receivers	B	Any group whose membership includes Marvin Harrison deserves high marks. He has established himself as one of the NFL's best, and can become the first player in league history to catch at least 100 passes in four straight years. The pressure is on wideouts Qadry Ismail and Reggie Wayne and TE Marcus Pollard to be productive complements.
Offensive line	B	A changing of the guards must be carried out without a hitch. Ryan Diem is the right-side starter and Rick DeMulling replaces Steve McKinney on the left side. No one questions the competency of LT Tarik Glenn, RT Adam Meadows or C Jeff Saturday. Interior depth is a concern.
Defensive line	C -	Returnees Chad Bratzke and Ellis Johnson should embrace the new defense. But so much is riding on first-round draft pick Dwight Freeney and second-rounder Larry Tripplett stepping in and making immediate contributions. If the front four struggles, the new defense will be about as effective as the old one.
Linebackers	C +	Mike Peterson, Marcus Washington, Rob Morris and off-season pick-up Greg Favors form a talented quartet. Peterson remains the best player on defense, but he'll get a serious challenge from Washington. Morris needs to assert himself this year after enduring a productive (team-high 128 tackles) but inconsistent second season.
Secondary	C -	FS Idrees Bashir is a keeper, and CB Walt Harris will provide stability and veteran leadership to an area that needs heaping doses of both. The rest of the cast is young and unsettled. The key component might be CB David Macklin, who must rebound from an erratic 2001.
Special teams	C	There's a lot to like about K Mike Vanderjagt and P Hunter Smith. But there are a lot of question marks everywhere else. Is there a capable replacement for return specialist Terrence Wilkins? Can anybody on this team cover punts and kickoffs?

TSN REPORT CARD

Coaching staff	B -	Tom Coughlin is one of the league's better in-game strategists and always seems to get maximum effort. It's in the personnel area where the autocratic Coughlin has fallen short lately. Coughlin will go back to calling his own plays again, while the defense has been entrusted to loyal aide John Pease.
Quarterbacks	C +	Mark Brunell is still a Pro Bowl-caliber quarterback, but he's getting up in age (31) and all of the sacks in recent years have to catch up to him sometime. The real concern is if Brunell goes down, because rookie David Garrard is a project and there isn't a proven backup on the roster.
Running backs	B +	Can Fred Taylor stay healthy? Probably not. But if he can, watch out. The oft-injured Taylor is determined to prove his horde of doubters wrong with a 1,500-yard season. Backup Stacey Mack was one of the league's hottest runners the last month of 2001, and second-year pro Elvis Joseph shows promise.
Receivers	C +	The Jaguars took a major gamble in breaking up the Jimmy Smith-Keenan McCardell tandem. Patrick Johnson and Bobby Shaw are younger and have better speed than McCardell, but the veteran was as sure-handed as they come. Coughlin still has yet to develop a young receiver of his own.
Offensive line	D	This unit yielded a franchise-record 63 sacks last season, then lost stalwart Tony Boselli in the expansion draft. Right tackle Maurice Williams will be the only lineman manning the same position he did last year. With a rookie likely starting at left tackle, it could be difficult for Brunell to stay healthy this season.
Defensive line	D	The interior was gutted when tackles Gary Walker and Seth Payne were lost to expansion, and now the Jaguars expect No. 1 pick John Henderson and underachiever Marcus Stroud to pick up the slack. That's a tall order. End Tony Brackens could disappear under a wave of double teams.
Linebackers	C	The Jaguars lose a lot in the transition at middle linebacker from Hardy Nickerson to Wali Rainer, and the jury is still out on strongside linebacker Danny Clark. Weakside linebacker T.J. Slaughter is a potential star, but he's coming off a significant knee injury. Depth is a major concern here.
Secondary	C +	Coughlin is promising more man-to-man coverage, although it remains to be seen if starters Fernando Bryant and Jason Craft are capable of that. Bryant is bothered by foot problems and has fallen off dramatically from his solid rookie season in 1999. Kiwaukee Thomas is a quality nickel back, though.
Special teams	C	P Chris Hanson came out of nowhere to enjoy a terrific year in 2001 and is the special teams MVP. The picture isn't so cheery at kicker, where Jaret Holmes is the leading candidate to replace Mike Hollis. The coverage units are respectable, but the club still lacks a home-run threat on punt returns.

TSN REPORT CARD

Coaching staff	B	The Chiefs did well enough last season given a deficiency of talent and QB Trent Green's poor play. Offensive coordinator Al Saunders in particular did a nice job of adapting. The Chiefs should benefit from stability. Everybody on last year's staff returned.
Quarterbacks	D +	Green must play better than last season, when he led the league with 24 interceptions. He should be helped by a better wide receiving group and the fact his surgically repaired knee had healed sufficiently enough to allow him to work all spring. But there is almost no depth behind him (Todd Collins, Joe Germaine).
Running backs	B +	Priest Holmes gave the Chiefs a huge lift in both the running and passing games. He also surprised the Chiefs with his durability. Tony Richardson is a versatile fullback and effective short-yardage and goal-line runner. The mostly untested depth is a question.
Receivers	C	The Chiefs should be better than last year, but still these positions abound with questions. Can Johnnie Morton be an effective No. 1 wide receiver? Can Eddie Kennison provide a consistent threat on the opposite side? Can Sylvester Morris rebound from missing all of last year with a knee injury? Will Tony Gonzalez be more effective?
Offensive line	B +	The addition of LT Willie Roaf could make this one of the league's strongest groups. Roaf, who is coming off a knee injury and surgery, must be healthy in order for it to work. The Chiefs will be very athletic at the three inside positions.
Defensive line	C	The drafting of Ryan Sims and Eddie Freeman should pay off in the long run. They may get overwhelmed at the start, though. The lack of an inside pass rush greatly diminished the pass rush production of ends Eric Hicks and Duane Clemons.
Linebackers	C -	Marvcus Patton is an ageless wonder. He's 35, but was still productive from his spot in the middle last year. Donnie Edwards was the other playmaker in this group in recent seasons. It's unclear whether the Chiefs have anyone who can replace that.
Secondary	B -	The Chiefs need Eric Warfield to play like he deserves his new seven-year, $28 million contract. If he develops into a shut-down type of corner, the Chiefs will improve significantly. He's been inconsistent, though. Jerome Woods and Greg Wesley are an effective pair of safeties.
Special teams	C +	Even at 42, Morten Andersen may be more reliable and have more range on field goals than Todd Peterson. But Andersen may be a liability on kickoffs. The Chiefs need more from their return game than Dante Hall gave them last year.

TSN REPORT CARD

Coaching staff	B +	Dave Wannstedt has coaxed 22 wins out of the Dolphins the last two years and he has a good feeling on when to put the pressure on them and when to back off. The addition of Norv Turner makes them unquestionably better on offense.
Quarterbacks	B	Jay Fiedler has a lot of detractors, but he has learned when to make the tough pass and when to throw the ball away. He can make plays on his feet, and he has courage. The backups, Ray Lucas and Cade McNown, have the ability to handle the job for more than spot duty.
Running backs	B +	Ricky Williams is the best running back this franchise has had in 25 years. He is also a dangerous pass catcher. If he can stay healthy, big things can be expected. With Turner, this is a huge year for FB Rob Konrad, who will be an unrestricted free agent following the season.
Receivers	B	Chris Chambers is destined to be a star. He has all the tools to be a yearly Pro Bowl participant, but he has help in Oronde Gadsden, James McKnight and Dedric Ward. This group's speed should be better utilized this year.
Offensive line	C	The biggest question mark on the team is the guys up front. Tim Ruddy and Todd Perry need to rebound following subpar seasons. Mark Dixon and Brent Smith are coming off leg injuries on the left side of the line. Todd Wade was not as good last year as he was as a rookie. A new system and the return of healthy players should help.
Defensive line	B	Jason Taylor should have made the Pro Bowl last year and does not get the credit he deserves as a run defender. The middle of the line will be anchored by Tim Bowens and Larry Chester, who might push Bowens for strongest player on the team. Daryl Gardener's move to end is interesting, but he needs to stay healthy. Losing Lorenzo Bromell and Kenny Mixon hurts.
Linebackers	B -	MLB Zach Thomas is the focal point of this defense, but he needs protection from the guys up front. Derrick Rodgers needs to be more productive and is coming off shoulder surgery. Morlon Greenwood struggled some as a rookie, but got better as the season went on. Like Rodgers, he needs to be more productive. Depth is a big issue.
Secondary	B +	The loss of Brian Walker is offset by Arturo Freeman, who will take over at strong safety. Having Brock Marion, Sam Madison and Patrick Surtain back makes this the team's strength. Last year's No. 1 pick, Jamar Fletcher, will be under pressure to perform as the third corner.
Special teams	B	Olindo Mare continues to be among the game's best kickers. He is clutch and he doesn't let misses affect him. He's also a dangerous kickoff man. Mark Royals doesn't have the leg of the departed Matt Turk, but he should benefit from a better coverage unit. One area of upgrade will have to be the return game.

TSN REPORT CARD

Coaching staff	C	This is an unproven staff. But this is a very dedicated group that is hungry to win. Mike Tice diligently filled his staff with his type of people—young, confident coaches who believe in teaching. This staff has a chance to grow together.
Quarterback	B	Daunte Culpepper didn't have a great 2001 season. Before he suffered a season-ending knee injury, he was more mistake-prone than he was in his breakout 2000 season. But this is a solid player who is going to improve and should be one of the better quarterbacks again this season.
Running backs	C -	This group has a chance to get better. Michael Bennett improved toward the end of last season. He needs to run with more authority and confidence. But running is a key to this offense. So Bennett will get his chances to prove he was a worthy top pick last season.
Receivers	B	Tice wants 40 percent of the Vikings passes directed toward Randy Moss. He thinks Moss is the most dangerous player in the league. So new offensive coordinator Scott Linehan will find a way to get Moss the ball. D'Wayne Bates, new from Chicago, must fill the No. 2 spot as effectively as Cris Carter once did.
Offensive line	B -	This group gained confidence last season after the adversity it went through. Center Matt Birk is one of the best in the game and right tackle Chris Liwienski is underrated. Rookie LT Bryant McKinnie will help this unit regain its old form.
Defensive line	B	All of a sudden, this is potentially one of the better defensive lines in the league with the addition of ends Kenny Mixon and Lorenzo Bromell. This will only help T Chris Hovan, who needed help in the past. Former Georgia Tech coach George O'Leary, who will lead this group, is known as a very strong defensive line coach.
Linebackers	D	This unit, which underwent a major offseason overhaul, remains a work in progress and the team will likely add even more help. Free-agent signee Henri Crockett will help in the middle. Untested Patrick Chukwurah and rookie Raonall Smith will learn on the job on the outside.
Secondary	D +	Like linebacker, there are some holes here. However, the addition of left cornerback Corey Chavous, one of the most intelligent players in the league, will help. Watch for right RCB Eric Kelly to continue to improve. The safety position is still unclear.
Special teams	C -	There will be changes here, starting with new coach Jay Hayes, who last year ran Pittsburgh's special teams unit. What this group has going for it is its coverage unit, which should be one of the best in the league.

TSN REPORT CARD

Coaching staff	A +	After last year, Bill Belichick has to be considered the best in the league. He took a roster that was average in talent and led it to a championship. In Charlie Weis (offense), Romeo Crennel (defense) and Brad Seely (special teams), the Pats have three coordinators who should be head coaches some day.
Quarterbacks	B +	Tom Brady is not the most talented passer in the league, but he's smart, instinctive and disciplined. That goes a long way nowadays. He'll have to improve his deep throws and his mobility to reach the next level. Damon Huard is a solid, viable backup. Rohan Davey and Major Applewhite are promising youngsters.
Running backs	B	Antowain Smith makes up for his lack of elusiveness with toughness and dependability. He also has an excellent nose for the goal line and first-down marker. J.R. Redmond is strong in the passing game, but he has yet to show the dependability to be an every-down back. Marc Edwards is a solid fullback.
Receivers	B -	You have to love WR Troy Brown. Other than him, though, it's a work in progress. David Patten, a 14-game starter last season, is probably better suited as a third receiver. Free agent Donald Hayes should help. At tight end, the Pats drafted Daniel Graham and signed free agents Cam Cleeland and Christian Fauria. Hopefully, at least one of them can help.
Offensive line	B -	This unit should rate an 'A' within a few years, but it's not there yet. The line is aggressive in run-blocking, but it still gives up way too much pressure (46 sacks in 2001). The Pats will be looking for big strides from LT Matt Light.
Defensive line	B	DT Richard Seymour is a budding star and DE Willie McGinest still can be an impact player at times. The rest of the line is made up of savvy veterans (Anthony Pleasant, Bobby Hamilton, Steve Martin, Rick Lyle) who are comfortable in Bill Belichick's system.
Linebackers	B -	Again, not the most talented group in the league, but they play the system and they make plays when they have the chance. MLB Tedy Bruschi is the trend-setter. Mike Vrabel is a solid force on the outside. If OLB Roman Phifer returns, the grade here becomes a 'B+' right off the bat.
Secondary	B	This is a physical and intimidating group, something that really shows itself in the red zone. But the secondary gives up too many yards and too many first downs in the middle of the field to be considered dominant.
Special teams	A +	Punt returner and jack-of-all-trades Troy Brown is among the best at what he does. There is no better bad-weather, late-game kicker that Adam Vinatieri. P Ken Walter is a master at dropping the ball inside the 20. The kicking game won the Pats the Super Bowl last year.

TSN REPORT CARD

Coaching staff	B +	No coach's stock fell further in one season than Jim Haslett's, who went from unanimous Coach of the Year to accusations that he lost his team down the stretch. Haslett needs to get the swagger and aggressiveness back. The addition of veteran assistants Mike Riley and Mike Sheppard strengthens the group. Respected tactician Rick Venturi takes over as defensive coordinator and will get the unit back on track.
Quarterbacks	B -	Aaron Brooks has all the physical skills to become a Pro Bowl quarterback. To take the next step, he must improve his leadership skills and decision-making. Reserves Jake Delhomme and Jeff Lewis are unproven over the long haul. The Saints thought enough of Delhomme that they let Jeff Blake depart in the offseason.
Running backs	C	The Ricky Williams era is over. Deuce McAllister brings more speed and big-play ability but it remains to be seen if he can do it game-in, game-out like Williams. He must rise to the challenge and be there for 16 games, because there's no quality depth behind him.
Receivers	B +	The addition of Donte Stallworth, Jerome Pathon and David Sloan transforms this unit from a weakness to a strength. For the first time in years, the Saints have multiple weapons to stretch the field and work the seams. If Stallworth is as good as advertised he won't be kept from the starting unit. Much will depend on how quickly the group meshes.
Offensive line	B	The good news: The tackle tandem of Kyle Turley and Victor Riley is as talented as any duo in the league and veteran Jerry Fontenot continues to defy age. The bad news: Right guard is a question mark and depth is unproven. After an offseason shake-up, this unit must mesh quickly to improve. The ability is there.
Defensive line	B	The Saints have changed their emphasis from speed and rushing the passer to size and playing the run. The interior trio of Norman Hand, Grady Jackson and Martin Chase could be one of the best walls in the league if they all can stay in shape. Darren Howard is on the spot at right end.
Linebackers	D +	Charlie Clemons should be much better in the middle after a year's experience. He needs to become a stronger leader as well. Much is expected of Sedrick Hodge, who has the tools to become a big-timer but lacks experience. Bryan Cox and James Allen improve depth.
Secondary	B +	The Saints are gambling that Dale Carter is the real deal. How he holds up over a 16-game schedule on 32-year-old legs will be a major factor in the success of this unit. If Ken Irvin can handle the nickel back role, the secondary should be stronger than its ever been. Safeties Sammy Knight and Jay Bellamy are solid.
Special teams	D	In John Carney, the Saints have one of the most dependable legs in the league. He's money from 45 yards and in. The rest of the special teams are suspect. The club hopes that a return threat emerges from the talented rookie crop. Coverage teams have been a disappointment for two years.

TSN REPORT CARD

Coaching staff	B -	The afterglow of the Super Bowl season already has faded, and Jim Fassel might be ousted if the team has another losing record. He will be counting on a retooled staff with a new defensive coordinator (Johnnie Lynn) and special teams coach (Bruce Read).
Quarterbacks	B -	If Kerry Collins can eliminate mistakes such as his record 23 fumbles he can be a top-10 passer, but he has been prone to fumbles and interceptions for much of his career. The team is high on second-year man Jesse Palmer, who could get his chance late in the season if Collins falters.
Running backs	A -	Tiki Barber is the team's most versatile weapon. The biggest challenge for the staff is figuring out how to integrate Ron Dayne into the offense consistently, too. If Sean Bennett finally finds a way to stay healthy, he can be a versatile weapon.
Receivers	C	Amani Toomer and Ike Hilliard put up solid numbers, but the team needs one of its young speedsters to step up from among Ron Dixon, Tim Carter, Daryl Jones and Jonathan Carter. Rookie TE Jeremy Shockey will play right away and will get the ball.
Offensive line	D	The team is rolling the dice with an untested group including Ts Chris Bober and Jeff Hatch and Gs Jason Whittle, Rich Seubert and Mike Rosenthal. There will be three new starters, and C Dusty Zeigler is coming off serious leg surgery.
Defensive line	B -	Michael Strahan is great, but he will face the pressure of the final year of his contract and of enormous expectations. It would help to get better years out of Kenny Holmes, Keith Hamilton and Cornelius Griffin, all of whom were hurt in 2001. There is no rotation to speak of.
Linebackers	C	Five-time Pro Bowler Jessie Armstead is gone from the weak side, leaving unproven Dhani Jones beside Mike Barrow and Brandon Short, plus three rookies. Barrow is a force in the middle who has been a near-miss for the Pro Bowl several times.
Secondary	B -	The corner trio of Jason Sehorn, Will Allen and Will Peterson is a team strength. Shaun Williams should be more comfortable on the strong side, where he can hit more and cover less. For now, journeyman Omar Stoutmire mans the free side.
Special teams	D	There is nowhere to go but up. The draft should help, with the additions of return men Tim Carter and Daryl Jones and speedy LB Wesly Mallard. Punter Rodney Williams has enormous potential but needs consistency. Owen Pochman gets a shot as placekicker.

TSN REPORT CARD

Coaching staff	B +	Herman Edwards, with a year of head-coaching experience, should do a better job in 2002—not that last season was a bust. Edwards, kinder and gentler than predecessor Al Groh, became the first coach in team history to lead the Jets to the playoffs in his maiden season. He has two terrific coordinators in Ted Cottrell (defense) and Mike Westhoff (special teams). Paul Hackett (offense) is on the hot seat.
Quarterbacks	C +	Vinny Testaverde, 38, still has a fastball and a big heart. He's capable of leading the Jets back to the playoffs—if everything goes right around him—but he isn't going to take them to the Super Bowl. Can Chad Pennington? Nobody knows. He'll get his shot if Testaverde falters. Did someone say quarterback controversy?
Running backs	A	This is the strongest position on the team. Curtis Martin, on his way to the Hall of Fame, is coming off his best season. His understudy is talented LaMont Jordan, who will have a bigger role. The Jets really could use a blocking fullback. For now, they have Richie Anderson, who can catch.
Receivers	B -	The Jets have three good wideouts in Wayne Chrebet, Laveranues Coles and Santana Moss—all under 6 feet—but they don't have a true No. 1 receiver. Moss has a chance to be special if he can rebound from knee surgery. TE Anthony Becht is OK, but he should be better. Too many drops.
Offensive line	B +	This was the strongest unit in 2001, but the Fab Five broke up, with the losses of LG Kerry Jenkins and RT Ryan Young. Such is life in the free agency era. But don't feel too sorry for the Jets; they still have three anchors in C Kevin Mawae, LT Jason Fabini and RG Randy Thomas.
Defensive line	B -	The pass rush will be better. With bookends John Abraham and rookie Bryan Thomas, the Jets may have the quickest pair of ends around. If Shaun Ellis gets his act together, they will be loaded at end. The problem is in the middle. After NT Jason Ferguson, there's... um, well, nobody to speak of. Team officials are scouring the free-agent market.
Linebackers	A -	Newcomer Sam Cowart, coming off a partially-torn Achilles' tendon, will bring leadership and playmaking skills to an already solid unit. If he returns to his 2000 form, this will be a scary trio. Mo Lewis and Marvin Jones, with 20 years of combined experience, still perform at a high level.
Secondary	B -	Three new starters—corners Donnie Abraham and Aaron Beasley and SS Sam Garnes. Does different mean better? Not necessarily. One thing is certain: The Jets will be a zone team; they don't have anybody left who can play man-to-man. They will miss Aaron Glenn's cover skills and Victor Green's knack for big plays.
Special teams	B +	The addition of former Pro Bowl P Matt Turk will make a big difference. With speedy Santana Moss returning from a knee injury, the Jets might actually be able to return a punt more than seven yards. PK John Hall, who booted the Jets into the playoffs, is back. They need to work on being prepared for onsides kicks. No joke.

TSN REPORT CARD

Coaching staff	B	Coach Bill Callahan inherits a team that needs only fine-tuning. He helped create that situation as Jon Gruden's right-hand man the past four seasons. Therefore, he should be capable of handling the reins. Defensive coordinator Chuck Bresnahan and special teams coach Bob Casullo return and spearhead units that need improvement but are capable of doing so under their guidance.
Quarterbacks	A	Rich Gannon is as good as any quarterback at keeping his team in every game and finding ways to turn negative situations into positive ones. He is a rarity in that he gets better as he gets older. He remains the key to Oakland's overall success. Bobby Hoying and Marques Tuiasosopo are solid backups to Gannon.
Running backs	B +	Charlie Garner played well enough in 2001 to supplant Tyrone Wheatley as the lead back. Both are back, as are Randy Jordan, Zack Crockett, Terry Kirby and Jon Ritchie. Each player fulfills a specific role and complements the others well. This position remains one of Oakland's strengths.
Receivers	A -	Jerry Rice proved to be an ideal complement to Tim Brown. Both posted impressive numbers. Their presence, along with the emergence of Jerry Porter, gives Gannon multiple options on critical downs. The Raiders still are looking for someone to emerge as a legitimate deep threat.
Offensive line	A -	LG Steve Wisniewski retired. However, C Barret Robbins and RG Mo Collins are back from season-ending injuries. Frank Middleton replaces Wisniewski. Barry Sims and Lincoln Kennedy are fresh from Pro Bowl-caliber seasons. Brad Badger, Matt Stinchcomb, Darryl Ashmore and Adam Treu provide tremendous depth and flexibility.
Defensive line	B +	Starting Ts Grady Jackson and Darrell Russell are gone. E Trace Armstrong is returning from a season-ending injury. Still, the Raiders make up for any shortcomings with desirable depth and a solid eight-man rotation. T John Parrella's overall performance will be critical to the line's success.
Linebackers	B -	OLBs William Thomas and Elijah Alexander are gone. Enter Bill Romanowski and Gerald Dixon. Also, mainstay Greg Biekert is back in the middle as the heart of Oakland's defense. Romanowski brings intensity, experience and playmaking to a unit in need of just that. This unit likely will be stronger this season than it was in 2001.
Secondary	C +	The Raiders will be in good shape at cornerback, with Charles Woodson and Eric Allen, Tory James or Phillip Buchanon opposite him. Getting back a healthy Woodson is a big boost. Derrick Gibson's expected presence at one of the safety positions should make a noticeable difference. Anthony Dorsett and Johnnie Harris will be held to higher expectations this season.
Special teams	B -	P Shane Lechler followed up an All-Pro season in 2000 with an even better one last year. K Sebastian Janikowski developed into a reliable weapon but needs work on his kickoff depth. Kick coverage and finding a punt returner are things that need to be addressed.

TSN REPORT CARD

Coaching staff	B	Andy Reid deserves a lot of credit for injecting life into a team that was dead when he arrived in 1999. Even though most of the key players, with the obvious exception of quarterback Donovan McNabb, were already there, Reid and defensive coordinator Jim Johnson put them in position to win. Special teams coach John Harbaugh is the best in the business.
Quarterbacks	A	McNabb has become the team's unquestioned leader of not only the offense, but the entire team. His success will determine the team's success. There are more talented backups than Koy Detmer, but he gets the job done the rare times he is called.
Running backs	C +	Duce Staley needs to show he's back from injuries and can be the team's featured back again. He's the complete package of runner, receiver and blocker when healthy. Speaking of injuries, Correll Buckhalter (torn ACL) will be missed. Rookie Brian Westbrook will add speed and a home-run threat. Fullback Cecil Martin also needs to bounce back with a good season.
Receivers	C	The Eagles are still a No. 1 receiver away from being a complete unit. James Thrash is a good No. 2, and neither young player Todd Pinkston, nor Freddie Mitchell have shown they are more than good No. 3s. TE Chad Lewis remains one of the keys to the offense and one of McNabb's go-to-guys.
Offensive line	B -	Give them an A as pass blockers, and a C as run blockers. LT Tra Thomas has emerged as a true blue chip player, but right tackle Jon Runyan has not been as good as expected. The interior of Jermane Mayberry and John Welbourn at guard and Hank Fraley at center is solid, but unspectacular.
Defensive line	B	RE Hugh Douglas, tackle Corey Simon, and backup end Derrick Burgess are all good pass rushers, but none of the three are true run stoppers. And that's been the team's major problem. Big T Hollis Thomas needs to come back healthy from a broken foot to make a difference.
Linebackers	C +	This is a new unit with only SLB Carlos Emmons returning. There are questions in the middle where Barry Gardner will try and replace two-time Pro Bowl selection Jeremiah Trotter. Shawn Barber could be a good addition on the weakside, but he's coming back from a torn ACL.
Secondary	A +	The best in the league a year ago, and the team added three top draft picks to the mix. Troy Vincent is as good as any corner in the league, and Bobby Taylor is among the top No. 2 corners. FS Brian Dawkins is also among the best at his position. SS Blaine Bishop will try and turn the clock back prior to his foot injury.
Special teams	A +	Again, the best in the league a year ago. Returnman Brian Mitchell still gets it done on both kickoffs and punts and has some youngsters to groom this year. P Sean Landeta is still going after 18 years, and David Akers has become the league's most consistent placekicker.

TSN REPORT CARD

Coaching staff	A	Bill Cowher kept the Steelers focused and challenged for 17 weeks, compiling the best record in the conference and coming within a game of the Super Bowl. What's more, he addressed the team's biggest problem area when he fired special-teams coach Jay Hayes a day after the AFC title-game loss to the Patriots. The addition of OL coach Russ Grimm and QB coach Tom Clements last year were major plusses, and offensive coordinator Mike Mularkey was a smash hit in his first year in that role.
Quarterbacks	B +	The dramatic improvement and maturation of QB Kordell Stewart, who made the Pro Bowl, was the biggest reason for the team's success in 2001. Stewart was a good fit for Mularkey's system, which required less reading and more spot-throwing, but he also made better decisions on when to run and when to throw. His durability is a plus, too, because the team never had to use backup Tommy Maddox in an emergency.
Running backs	A	Jerome Bettis was leading the NFL in rushing when he was injured and did not play the final five games of the regular season. If Bettis is fully recovered from his injury, there is no reason not to expect a similar performance this season. His absence was a benefit to backup Amos Zereoue, who proved to be a valuable counter with his speed and stop-and-go style.
Receivers	B	This area made the biggest improvement in 2001. Plaxico Burress started to look like the star the team envisioned when it made him the eighth overall pick in 2000. Burress and Hines Ward combined to become the first pair of 1,000-yard receivers in team history. However, the team enters this season with a question mark—how to replace slot receiver Bobby Shaw on third downs. The Steelers are hoping rookie Antwaan Randle El, a converted quarterback, can fill the role.
Offensive line	B +	Maybe the strongest position on the team. The addition of free agent C Jeff Hartings to replace Dermontti Dawson was a huge success last season. The left side of the line with Hartings, Pro Bowl G Alan Faneca and T Wayne Gandy is one of the best in the league. The team was not afraid to let go of RG Rich Tylski, a starter the past two seasons, because they think they can find a starter from one of three players—converted T Oliver Ross, second-year free-agent Keydrick Vincent or rookie No. 1 Kendall Simmons.
Defensive line	B -	The addition of NT Casey Hampton, a No. 1 pick in 2001, was just what the team needed for its 3-4 defense. Hampton is stubborn and hard to move and he strengthened the middle of the defense. LE Aaron Smith has developed into one of the premier ends in the conference and is the best pass rusher among the defensive lineman.
Linebackers	B +	The team did not think ILB Earl Holmes played very well last season, even though he led the team in tackles for the third year in a row. That's why they decided not to re-sign him in free agency. The addition of James Farrior from the Jets will be another to upgrade the unit's speed, something they did last year with rookie Kendrell Bell. Still, this unit is the strength of the defense.
Secondary	B	The team returns all four starters and made a big signing in the offseason by bringing back No. 3 CB Deshea Townsend, a regular in the dime defense. The biggest question is whether Hank Poteat, a third-year corner, can finally move up and become the No. 4 cornerback to replace free-agent loss Jason Simmons. The addition of S Mike Logan last season proved to be a smart move because he brought a lot of speed to the dime defense.
Special teams	D -	The only reason it doesn't get a failing grade is because of P Josh Miller, who is one of the best in the league. K Kris Brown missed a league-high 14 field goals in 2001 and has been replaced by Todd Peterson, whose career has not exactly been a model of consistency. The coverage units were so bad last year they cost the team a chance to go to the Super Bowl.

TSN REPORT CARD

Coaching staff	A -	As he enters his third NFL season as a head coach, Mike Martz continues to grow and mature on the job. He leaves Lovie Smith alone on defense, but the amount of money spent, and draft picks invested, on that side of the ball in the past two years show Martz is committed to having a well-rounded team, not merely one with a great offense.
Quarterbacks	A	When it comes to accuracy, yards, and TD passes, Kurt Warner is putting up numbers that are almost unprecedented in NFL history. A nagging thumb injury from a year ago bears watching in '02. Will there be any carryover? The only glitch in his game: Warner needs to cut down on his interceptions, throwing more dump-off passes instead of forcing the deep ball.
Running backs	A	If his right knee holds up, and it was fine down the stretch last season, Marshall Faulk should post his fifth consecutive season with 2,000 or more total yards—a league record. Trung Canidate is a more than adequate replacement if he can hang onto the football.
Receivers	A -	Isaac Bruce and Torry Holt remain one of the best wide receiver tandems in the league, if not the best. At age 34, Ricky Proehl is showing no signs of slowing down as a third-down receiver. The X-factors are newcomers Terrence Wilkins and rookie Eric Crouch.
Offensive line	B +	Underrated as run blockers, this remains an above-average pass blocking unit although it needs to cut down on sacks allowed. Built more for finesse and quickness than power, the stalwarts of the group remain Pro Bowlers LT Orlando Pace and RG Adam Timmerman. The only new starter, RT John St. Clair, has yet to take a snap in a regular-season NFL game.
Defensive line	B	Leonard Little emerged as one of the NFL's best pass rushers last season, but the Rams must work to develop a complementary pass rusher. A better inside push would help, and it could come from second-year DTs Damione Lewis and Ryan Pickett, both first-round draft picks in 2001. No one works harder on game day than DE Grant Wistrom.
Linebackers	B -	One of the goals of the offseason was to get better here. It remains to be seen if that will be the case, with Jamie Duncan replacing London Fletcher at middle linebacker, and Robert Thomas in and Mark Fields out. This will be one of the fastest linebacking units in the league, but it's on the light side to hold up against the run over a full season.
Secondary	B	Veteran Aeneas Williams gives the Rams the size and physical presence to handle the bigger receivers in the NFC West, such as Terrell Owens of San Francisco and Arizona's David Boston. Dre' Bly improved as a nickel back last season, but still needs more discipline. This could be a make-or-break year for Dexter McCleon, because of a big jump in his base salary in '03.
Special teams	B	Terrence Wilkins is one of the best combination punt and kickoff return men in the league. He will be more secure with the football on punt returns than the departed Az-Zahir Hakim. K Jeff Wilkins and P Mitch Berger, if he stays healthy, are in the upper tier at their positions in the league.

TSN REPORT CARD

Coaching staff	A	The Washington Redskins started 0-5 last season and looked like they belonged in a Pop Warner league. But Marty Schottenheimer somehow got the Redskins to win eight of their final 11 to finish 8-8. It was arguably the finest coaching job of his career, which is saying a lot considering he ranks second among active coaches in wins. Assistants such as Bill Arnsparger, Hudson Houck, Wayne Nunnely and Clarence Shelmon make the staff more formidable.
Quarterbacks	B -	Doug Flutie will need a knockout in the preseason to keep Drew Brees from being the starter. Brees has great poise and confidence, but he also is in just his second season, so look for him to struggle at times. Flutie turns 40 during the season, but age shouldn't be a factor if he's coming off the bench.
Running backs	A	LaDainian Tomlinson was the focal point of every defense last season but still ran for 1,236 yards behind an inconsistent line. He figures to be wiser and better and still running behind a suspect line this year. Terrell Fletcher is a solid third-down back, but he has to stay healthy after missing the final three games with a hamstring injury.
Receivers	B -	Curtis Conway and Tim Dwight are the only proven veterans, with Conway being the only proven starter. If one of them goes down, the offense will struggle because there's no depth behind them. The five players who'll compete for the No. 3 job have a combined 30 NFL catches among them. TE Stephen Alexander had his best seasons in this offensive system, but he has to stay healthy and prove he's not one-dimensional as a pass-catcher.
Offensive line	D	Both starting tackles return, but there's no experience at guard. Toniu Fonoti is an impressive prospect, but he's only a rookie—and he has to learn pass protection after playing in Nebraska's option-oriented offense. Ed Ellis is a converted tackle trying to learn a new position. Houck is a tremendous position coach, but he needs better players.
Defensive line	A	Marcellus Wiley and Raylee Johnson are among the top end combinations in the league. It's scary to think how good Wiley can be if he returns healthy and in shape. T Jamal Williams missed all of last season with a knee injury but has Pro Bowl potential. His return and the addition of Jason Fisk should lessen the impact of John Parrella's departure to Oakland.
Linebackers	B	Donnie Edwards was an excellent addition. He brings speed and athleticism to the strongside position. Junior Seau is Junior Seau. MLB Orlando Ruff will have to take his game to another level because the coaching staff is looking for a way to get second-year pro Carlos Polk on the field.
Secondary	B	Veteran Ryan McNeil and rookie Quentin Jammer give Schottenheimer the bump-and-run cornerbacks he desires, and second-year pro Tay Cody is an excellent nickel defender. The wildcard at cornerback is veteran Alex Molden, who received a $2.1 million signing bonus last year, then missed 10 games with knee and ankle injuries. If he's healthy, San Diego has good depth. The safeties are excellent with Rodney Harrison and Rogers Beckett.
Special teams	B	The returners are excellent. Ronney Jenkins led the league in kickoff-return average (26.6 yards), and Tim Dwight ranked fifth in the AFC with an average of 11.3 yards per punt return. P Darren Bennett still possesses one of the strongest legs in the business, even at age 37, and PK Steve Christie is solid from in close. The problem is field-goal attempts beyond 40 yards. Will the Chargers go with the aging Christie (13th season) or the strong-legged but erratic Wade Richey, who missed 11 of 32 attempts, including five from 38 yards or closer and nine from within 47 yards?

TSN REPORT CARD

Coaching staff	A -	The offense seemed to sputter late last season, but the defense got better and better. Coach Steve Mariucci was criticized by the media (and by Terrell Owens) for being conservative. But it was a run-and-play-defense approach that led the 49ers to a 12-4 season. The way Jim Mora is managing the defense, more explosion on offense may not be necessary.
Quarterbacks	A	Jeff Garcia should be even better following his second straight Pro Bowl campaign because he'll be healthier. At his best, he is running for two or three first downs a game, a trait that was limited because of a knee injury last season. His decision making (TD-to-INT ratio) is his strong suit.
Running backs	A	Second-year tailback Kevan Barlow is waiting in the wings to be a featured back, with a great combination of power and escapability. But the 49ers brought back free agent Pro Bowler Garrison Hearst, plus free agent FB Fred Beasley. So the league's second-ranked rushing offense should pick up where it left off.
Receivers	B +	The team had other options at the second receiver spot, but they renewed their commitment to J.J. Stokes (once he agreed to a significant pay cut). Stokes has been an underachiever, but he still has the talent to be more productive if both he and the team commit to it. Meanwhile, Owens might be the best all-around receiver in the game. And Tai Streets is healthier this year.
Offensive Line	A -	One of the league's most underrated units got even stronger with the addition of back-to-back Pro Bowl G Ron Stone from the New York Giants—nine years younger than the Pro Bowler he replaced, Ray Brown. Re-signing center Jeremy Newberry was the top offseason priority.
Defensive line	B -	The personnel is great on paper, but productivity was low last season. Tackles Bryant Young and Dana Stubblefield could double their sack total. And Andre Carter could bust loose in his second season at defensive end. Everybody is back from last year, plus the 49ers added backup Sean Moran.
Linebackers	B -	In about 15 months, this went from the 49ers' shallowest unit to maybe its deepest. A young corps got stronger with the draft selection of Alabama's Saleem Rasheed. But Derek Smith, Julian Peterson, Jeff Ulbrich and Jamie Winborn all have experience on him. It's a fast unit that covers the run well.
Secondary	B +	A strong unit got even stronger with the drafting of 6-foot-2 CB Mike Rumph from Miami. Starting corners Ahmed Plummer and Jason Webster were outstanding last year, as was S Zack Bronson. And while S Lance Schulters will be missed, free agent Tony Parrish is a comparable replacement.
Special teams	C +	The wealth of young athletes on the roster makes these cover units solid. The specialists are young, though. They drafted K Jeff Chandler to try and improve there. Second-year return man Vinny Sutherland and second-year P Jason Baker have jobs to lose in camp.

TSN REPORT CARD

Coaching staff	B -	Mike Holmgren's best move came in March, when he decided to commit to QB Trent Dilfer as the starter and re-signed him. Now he must settle on whether the Seahawks will be a run-first or pass-first offense, which never happened last season. Defensively, coordinator Steve Sidwell must find a way to generate a more productive pass rush.
Quarterbacks	C +	The past two seasons, Dilfer has risen from the role of backup and excelled, leading the Ravens to a Super Bowl victory in 2000 and the Seahawks to the doorstep of the playoffs last year. Now, he has to get it done while saddled with greater expectations.
Running backs	B	Shaun Alexander answered any questions about his ability as a runner last season. The question now: Can he do the job in the passing game? Ricky Watters will not be re-signed, so rookie Maurice Morris becomes the backup. Veteran FB Mack Strong is unsung, and his contributions underrated.
Receivers	C +	WR Darrell Jackson showed last year that his productive rookie season was not a fluke. What he needs now is help, especially from WR Koren Robinson, last year's first-round draft choice who had a disappointing rookie season; and rookie TE Jerramy Stevens, this year's first-round pick.
Offensive line	C +	It showed signs of finally coming together late last season, but this unit still is not as good as its individual parts indicate it should be. The left side of T Walter Jones and OG Steve Hutchinson is destined for greatness. The biggest question is RT Chris McIntosh, who missed most of last season with a neck stinger.
Defensive line	C +	DTs Chad Eaton and John Randle were signed in free agency last year and helped shore up the run defense, only to have the ends not hold up their end. While Eaton and Randle continue to supply answers, the questions linger at end: Can Lamar King stay healthy? Who will step up to replace Michael Sinclair?
Linebackers	B	As good as Chad Brown is, and has been, even he admits that fellow OLB Anthony Simmons is something special. MLB Levon Kirkland joined them via free agency last year to supply what really was needed: A run-stuffer with some attitude.
Secondary	C +	This unit needs to be better with the move into the NFC West. Staying healthy is the first step, starting with CB Shawn Springs. The free-agent signing of veteran CB Doug Evans was a valuable addition to the nickel.
Special teams	C	What was expected to be the most consistent unit on the team last year unraveled in its own inconsistency. The improvement must start in the kicking game, where Rian Lindell missed 12 field goals.

TSN REPORT CARD

Coaching staff	A	Jon Gruden is very intense and has a knack for pushing the right buttons and getting the most out of his players. Defensive coordinator Monte Kiffin and assistant head coach Rod Marinelli have mastered the cover 2 scheme and the use of small, quick defenders. Offensive line coach Bill Muir should help the line play to its abilities.
Quarterbacks	A	Brad Johnson doesn't have a rifle arm but he's one of the most accurate passers in the game. He's not very mobile but he gets the job done and is tougher than most give him credit for. Shaun King has experience as a starter, is cool in the huddle and makes plays. Rob Johnson may have more talent than both, but he needs refining. Gruden may be just the guy to do that.
Running backs	B	Michael Pittman should fit perfectly in Gruden's version of the West Coast offense. He's tough, fast enough to be a threat running outside and very capable as a pass catcher. Mike Alstott is a solid complement. He doesn't block well but he runs like a halfback and can carry an offense, especially from one-back sets. Byron Hanspard and Aaron Stecker provide good depth.
Receivers	B	Keyshawn Johnson is one of the best all-around receivers in the game. He creates matchup problems and is usually very sure-handed. As long as he's getting the ball regularly, he's happy. Joe Jurevicius is not the ideal complement, but he can stretch a defense and he's got good hands. If Marquise Walker can contribute, this could be the most improved area of the team this year. TE Ken Dilger may be the team's second-best overall receiver. He's the complete package. Backup TE Marco Battaglia and reserve receivers Keith Poole, Frank Murphy and Milton Wynn provide an array of competent targets.
Offensive line	B	With a year of experience under their belts, LT Kenyatta Walker and RG Cosey Coleman should be better. C Jeff Christy remains one of the best in the game at his position. LG Kerry Jenkins will be an upgrade on Randall McDaniel, and RT Jerry Wunsch remains quite serviceable. Backup LG/C Todd Washington provides some potentially necessary flexibility.
Defensive line	A	If Warren Sapp plays like Warren Sapp this unit could lead the league in sacks. Simeon Rice got comfortable in the team's one-gap scheme about midway through last season last year so he should dominate from the start this year. LDE Marcus Jones needs to gain a comfort level with his new position and contribute the way he did two years ago. If everyone else here stays healthy, NT Anthony McFarland will have the breakout year he was supposed to have had last year.
Linebackers	B -	With the exception of Derrick Brooks, this group is small in size and stature. However, they are very effective playing in Kiffin's scheme, which emphasizes ball pursuit and gang tackling. Overall the group is a little thin, so much so that Shelton Quarles may have to split time at both middle and strongside backer. Derrick Brooks is as good as they come on the weak side. Al Singleton has played well in a platoon role. How he'll do as a full-timer is to be determined.
Secondary	B	SS John Lynch and RCB Donnie Abraham are legitimate Pro Bowlers who have a great knack for blitzing and often make this unit look like an extension of the linebacking corps. LCB Brian Kelly is a good tackler and coverman but needs to be a bit more of a playmaker. FS Dexter Jackson is solid and can play corner in a pinch as well. The team has plenty of depth in nickel back Dwight Smith and newcomer Jermaine Phillips.
Special teams	C	K Martin Gramatica hits on better than 80 percent of his kicks and has the leg to make just about anything inside of 60 yards. He's getting more depth on his kickoffs but still needs to get a little more height to regain Pro Bowl form. WR Aaron Lockett has the speed (4.32 in the 40) to make an impact as a kick returner and punt returner. The punting situation is unsettled and may stay that way all season. The team didn't express much interest in retaining Mark Royals and could come to regret that.

TSN REPORT CARD

Coaching staff	B -	This grade should be better and has been in the past. But the blame for too many penalties—and the Titans had far too many penalties at critical times last season—has to rest somewhere. Things also need to run more smoothly on defense, where an injury-riddled team slipped from No. 1 in 2000 to No. 25 in 2001. Skill is one thing, blown assignments are quite another.
Quarterbacks	A	Steve McNair had his breakout season last year and Neil O'Donnell could be a starter for at least half the teams in the league. The Titans, under offensive coordinator Mike Heimerdinger, have asked their quarterbacks to do more and McNair's numbers will only get better if they continue that.
Running backs	C	This is another grade that should be better and has been in the past. But C is average and an injured Eddie George just wasn't himself last season. He will be an unknown until he carries the ball a few times. The Titans also tried a mix-and-match approach at fullback before finally admitting someone like free agent Greg Comella was needed to do the job.
Receivers	B +	Derrick Mason had his first 1,000-yard season in '01 and there is no reason to expect there won't be more. And Frank Wycheck continues to string 60-catch seasons together while Kevin Dyson had 54 catches. That made the Titans just one of 10 teams in the league with three players with 50 or more catches last season.
Offensive line	C -	They didn't get it done last season and with Bruce Matthews in retirement they lost a big part of their identity up front. They simply have to be better—no lineman was as good in '01 as he was in '00—with much the same cast. If they're not, forget about the postseason.
Defensive line	B	OK, they have spent the money here. Their starting defensive front could be four No. 1 draft picks—Jevon Kearse, Henry Ford, Albert Haynesworth and Kevin Carter—but now they all have to play that way.
Linebackers	B	They need to have Keith Bulluck in the lineup because it's time for him to play. However, they will miss Eddie Robinson's experience and Greg Favors' fire on defense. And they will go to camp not knowing who will play at one outside spot.
Secondary	C	This grade could be much better if the rookies—Clevan "Tank" Williams, Tony Beckham and Mike Echols—are ready to play. Williams just might be the starter at strong safety by the time the season gets going. But Lance Schulters will help at free safety and Samari Rolle, a 2000 Pro Bowl selection, has looked top-notch in preseason workouts.
Special teams	B +	This will be an A if kicker Joe Nedney can avoid some of the missed kicks he had last season. Nedney missed eight—all were attempts of at least 44 yards—and that's a few too many for a team that plays so many close games. They're well stocked at punter (Craig Hentrich) and returner (Mason).

TSN REPORT CARD

Coaching staff	B	No one is more confident in his ability to succeed than Steve Spurrier, which is good. Now, that confidence has to carry over to the team, and the only way that will happen is by winning. Marvin Lewis is a commanding presence and has the attention of the defensive players.
Quarterbacks	D	Shane Matthews has started just 15 games (all in the past three seasons) despite entering the NFL nearly a decade ago. Danny Wuerffel knows the offense, but has had mixed success in his pro career. Sage Rosenfels has the tools, and rookie Patrick Ramsey has the arm and brains, but neither has taken an NFL snap.
Running backs	B +	Stephen Davis is an elite runner who has at least one more 1,300-yard season in him. He also is a decent pass receiver, and should find plenty of opportunities to run and catch in the new offense. Ladell Betts, his backup, is a rookie who might see more duty than anyone expects, especially if he's an effective north-south runner and can catch. The fullbacks are decent.
Receivers	C -	The adequate and untested man these positions. Perhaps Jacquez Green and Reidel Anthony can revive their careers with Spurrier, their college coach. Rod Gardner needs to make a leap forward from last year's performance. Untested players such as Derrius Thompson and Darnerien McCants must make contributions. Things will look brighter if rookie speedster Cliff Russell has hands to match his speed.
Offensive line	C +	Things are not as dire here as they initially look. Chris Samuels and Jon Jansen give the team perhaps the best tackle tandem in the league. The concerns are in the middle, but Larry Moore is a decent center and Rod Jones should be a very capable right guard. A left guard has to be found, but there are worse things for a team to face.
Defensive line	D	The team has gotten old here fast and needs a big year from underachiever Dan Wilkinson and newcomer Renaldo Wynn. The problem is that neither is a pass rusher off the edge. Getting pressure on the quarterback with the front four is going to be very difficult.
Linebackers	A	This should be the strongest unit on the team. LaVar Arrington is a complete player entering the prime of his career. The same is true of Jeremiah Trotter. Jessie Armstead is nearing the end of his career, and there are questions about his knee. Antonio Pierce is a fine young player on the outside, and Kevin Mitchell would start had Trotter not been signed.
Secondary	B	Champ Bailey, Fred Smoot and Darrell Green give the team one of the best trios of cornerbacks in the league. The questions are at safety where David Terrell is an adequate free safety, but not a big playmaker. Sam Shade is excellent in run support at strong safety, but struggles in pass coverage. It's not clear that the young players behind Shade and Terrell are ready to take over.
Special teams	B -	The coverage units are strong, the kicking game should be adequate, but the return game is a question mark. Jacquez Green could do a lot to erase that question. Cliff Russell also could add a home-run threat on kickoff returns if he can handle that chore.

PLAYOFF PLAN

TIEBREAKING PROCEDURES

DIVISION TIES

TWO CLUBS

1. Head-to-head (best won-lost-tied percentage in games between the clubs).
2. Best won-lost-tied percentage in games played within the division.
3. Best won-lost-tied percentage in games played within the conference.
4. Best won-lost-tied percentage in common games, if applicable.
5. Best net points in division games.
6. Best net points in all games.
7. Strength of schedule.
8. Best net touchdowns in all games.
9. Coin toss.

THREE OR MORE CLUBS

(Note: If two clubs remain tied after other clubs are eliminated during any step, tie-breaker reverts to step 1 of two-club format.)

1. Head-to-head (best won-lost-tied percentage in games among the clubs).
2. Best won-lost-tied percentage in games played within the division.
3. Best won-lost-tied percentage in games played within the conference.
4. Best won-lost-tied percentage in common games.
5. Best net points in division games.
6. Best net points in all games.
7. Strength of schedule.
8. Best net touchdowns in all games.
9. Coin toss.

WILD-CARD TIES

If necessary to break ties to determine the three wild-card clubs from each conference, the following steps will be taken:

1. If all the tied clubs are from the same division, apply division tie-breaker.
2. If the tied clubs are from different divisions, apply the steps listed below.
3. When the first wild-card team has been identified, the procedure is repeated to name the second wild card (i.e., eliminate all but the highest-ranked club in each division prior to proceeding to step 2), and repeated a third time, if necessary, to identify the third wild card. In situations where three or more teams from the same division are involved in the procedure, the original seeding of the teams remains the same for subsequent applications of the tie-breaker if the top-ranked team in that division qualifies for a wild-card berth.

TWO CLUBS

1. Head-to-head, if applicable.
2. Best won-lost-tied percentage in games played within the conference.
3. Best won-lost-tied percentage in common games, minimum of four.
4. Best average net points in conference games.
5. Best net points in all games.
6. Strength of schedule.
7. Best net touchdowns in all games.
8. Coin toss.

THREE OR MORE CLUBS

(Note: If two clubs remain tied after other clubs are eliminated, tie-breaker reverts to step 1 of two-club format.)

1. Apply division tie-breaker to eliminate all but highest-ranked club in each division prior to proceeding to step 1. The original seeding within a division upon application of the division tie-breaker remains the same for all subsequent applications of the procedure that are necessary to identify the three wild-card participants.
2. Head-to-head sweep (applicable only if one club has defeated each of the others or one ciub has lost to each of the others).
3. Best won-lost-tied percentage in games played within the conference.
4. Best won-lost-tied percentage in common games, minimum of four.
5. Best average net points in conference games.
6. Best net points in all games.
7. Strength of schedule.
8. Best net touchdowns in all games.
9. Coin toss.

YEAR IN REVIEW

THE TOP STORIES OF THE PAST YEAR

A season put on hold for a week in its second week, as down emotionally as it has ever been because of the events of September 11, can be defined in its conclusion by a single word, a word that reflects the spirit of the nation as well: Rebirth.

Proud franchises came back to life. Players were given new opportunities. Careers were born again. And, in the end, it was the New England Patriots—could it get any better in a season of patriotism and nationalism?—who stood atop the football world as Super Bowl champions.

DA BEARS

In 2000, the Chicago Bears had an unremarkable 5-11 record and missed the playoffs for the sixth straight year. They had uncertainty at the quarterback position and an average defense. In 2001, with Jim Miller at quarterback and with a much improved defense, the Bears went 13-3 and fought the St. Louis Rams to the wire for the top record in the league.

Indicative of the Bears' return to prominence was an incredible two games in midseason. In consecutive weeks, Week 7 against San Francisco and Week 8 against Cleveland, Chicago pulled out victories on overtime interception returns by Mike Brown for the game-winning touchdown. The Week 8 victory was the Bears' sixth in a row after a Week 1 loss, putting them 6-1 and giving them status as a legitimate contender.

In the AFC, team turnaround was the Pittsburgh Steelers. After a 9-7 season in 2000, quarterback Kordell Stewart responded to his critics and led the team to a 13-3 season in 2001. Reminiscent of the Steelers' dynasty of the 1970s, their defense was terrific, leading the league in total defense and giving up an average of only 13.3 points a game.

Despite their successful regular seasons, however, both were bounced earlier than expected in the playoffs, the Bears by the Eagles in the divisional round and the Steelers by the Patriots in the AFC championship game.

TEXANS TAKE OFF

The NFL's 32nd team, the Houston Texans, used the expansion draft, free agency and, finally, the college draft to build a roster for their 2002 inaugural season.

The Texans used their first two expansion draft picks to select a pair of offensive tackles they believe will anchor their line for years to come: Tony Boselli and Ryan Young. Boselli, the second player taken in the 1995 draft and a five-time Pro Bowl pick with the Jaguars, was quickly snatched up by the Texans after being left unprotected by Jacksonville for both injury and salary-cap reasons. Young, a 16-game starter for the Jets the past two seasons, is viewed as one of the top young offensive linemen in the league.

In addition to Boselli and Young, the Texans also drafted Jets cornerbacks Aaron Glenn and Marcus Coleman, Jaguars defensive tackles Gary Walker and Seth Payne and Ravens linebacker Jamie Sharper and wide receiver/kick returner Jermaine Lewis, among others.

Among the free agents the Texans signed were offensive lineman Steve McKinney (late of the Colts), linebacker Kailee Wong (Vikings) and quarterback Kent Graham (Redskins).

In the April 20 college draft, the Texans used their first pick on Fresno State quarterback David Carr, a player they view as a cornerstone of their future but someone expected to bide his time behind Graham this season. At least, that's the plan.

STILL GOING STRONG

In his 17th season in the league, his first as an Oakland Raider, Jerry Rice had his most productive season statistically since 1998. In '01, Rice caught 83 passes—his most since 1996—for 1,139 yards and nine touchdowns—both high totals since his '98 season. Rice's performance was a primary reason for the Raiders' success, a season in which they finished 10-6 and beat the Jets in a playoff game before losing to New England in the divisional round.

In San Diego, Doug Flutie injected some vitality and excitement into the Chargers early in the season. Though the team finished an unremarkable 5-11, Flutie led the Chargers to a 5-2 start, including victories against Washington and Denver. His 294 completions and 3,464 passing yards were the most of his eight seasons in the league.

SACK MASTER

The New York Giants' Michael Strahan broke the league record for sacks in a season, but he did it in controversial fashion. Against the Packers on the final week of the season, Strahan sacked quarterback Brett Favre with 2:42 left in a game the Packers were leading by nine points. That sack gave him 22 1/2 for the season, one-half sack better than the record Mark Gastineau set with the Jets in 1984. Adamantly denying a conspiracy theory, Favre nonetheless gift-wrapped the record-breaking sack, rolling into the oncoming Strahan and falling to the ground.

KOREY STRINGER

Tragedy hit the league before any regular-season snap, before any preseason snap. Vikings lineman Korey Stringer died on August 1, a death related to the extreme summer heat and conditions at training camp. According to the NFL, Stringer's death was the third on-field fatality in league history, the first by heatstroke. Cardinals tight end J.V. Cain died of a heart attack during training camp in 1979, and Lions receiver Chuck Hughes died of a blood clot during a game in 1971. A player in the old American Football League died in 1963 after breaking his neck in a preseason game.

The Vikings retired Stringer's No. 77 jersey at halftime of a November 19 home game against the Giants.

OFFSEASON MOVES

• Cris Carter announced his retirement from the NFL in May 2002. He leaves as the No. 2 receiver (behind Rice) in multiple categories, including receptions (1,093), receiving touchdowns (129) and consecutive 1,000-yard seasons (8, tied with Steve Largent). Other players who announced their retirement at the conclusion of the 2001 season included Buccaneers guard Randall McDaniel (a former teammate of Carter's in Minnesota), Ravens defensive tackle Tony Siragusa, Raiders guard Steve Wisniewski and Giants tight end Howard Cross. Titans offensive lineman Bruce Matthews, whose 296 games played are the most of any full-time position player in NFL history, was widely expected to retire as well, although he had made no official announcement as of late May.

• The Tampa Bay Buccaneers endured a lengthy search for a successor to Tony Dungy as its head coach. Having let Dungy go (he eventually caught on in Indianapolis, where he takes over for Jim Mora), the Bucs ran through a series of potential new coaches, including former Giants, Patriots and Jets coach Bill Parcells. Eventually, the Bucs enticed Jon Gruden, who left his head coaching position with the Raiders, to take over in Tampa Bay.

• The Saints ended the Ricky Williams Era after only three seasons by trading the former Heisman Trophy-winning running back to the Miami Dolphins in March. New Orleans also gave up one draft pick and received three in return for Williams, a player the Saints gave up all their draft picks to acquire on Draft Day 1999.

• Quarterback Ryan Leaf, the second player taken in the 1998 draft, continued his search for an NFL home, but to little avail. After being released by his original team, the Chargers, in February 2001, Leaf subsequently signed with the Bucs, Cowboys and, in May 2002, the Seahawks. Leaf lost his only three starts for the Cowboys in 2001.

• After a highly successful college coaching career at Duke and at Florida, Steve Spurrier was hired as the Washington Redskins' new head coach in January. Spurrier, a quarterback in the NFL from 1967-76, wasted little time in acquiring a number of his former Gators, including quarterbacks Danny Wuerffel and Shane Matthews and wide receivers Reidel Anthony, Jacquez Green and Chris Doering.

• Drew Bledsoe, having been supplanted by Tom Brady as the starting quarterback in the Patriots' championship season, was traded in the offseason to the Buffalo Bills. The Patriots also severed their ties with wide receiver Terry Glenn, who was traded to the Green Bay Packers.

• Wide receiver Az Hakim, who starred in the Rams' pass-happy attack, signed as a free agent with the Detroit Lions. Other prominent players to switch teams via free agency included safety Robert Griffith (Vikings to Browns), linebacker Jeremiah Trotter (Eagles to Redskins), running back Warrick Dunn (Buccaneers to Falcons), defensive end Joe Johnson (Saints to Packers), wide receiver Johnnie Morton (Lions to Chiefs) and tight end Shannon Sharpe (Ravens to Broncos).

AFC East

Best surprise: Tom Brady, QB, Patriots. Drew who? Brady, an untested second-year player, played so well while Drew Bledsoe was injured that he never let go of the job. Brady led the Pats into the playoffs with the poise and confidence of a veteran and made the Pro Bowl.

Biggest bust: Lamar Smith, RB, Dolphins. After breaking out last season, Smith saw his fumbles go up (6) and his average per carry go down (3.1). For the most part, Smith didn't attack holes as he did in 2000. Miami needs the Smith who rushed for 158 yards in the season finale to show up in the playoffs.

Best Band-Aid: Dominic Rhodes, RB, Colts. The undrafted rookie filled in more than admirably for Edgerrin James. Rhodes kept the Indy running game rolling by flashing a lot of that familiar James burst.

Most painful injury: Daryl Gardener, DT, Dolphins. Miami's run defense took a big midseason hit when it lost its top gap plugger to a back injury. The loss also made it tougher for MLB Zach Thomas to get to the ballcarrier.

Play to remember: Jay Fiedler's last-second end-zone plunge that beat the Raiders in Week 2. It proved how tough the Dolphins' quarterback can be in the clutch.

Plays to forget: Six of Peyton Manning's 23 interceptions were returned for TDs, including two in a 44-13 loss at New England. That game was a microcosm of Manning and the Colts' disappointing season.

Change for the better: Herman Edwards brought a kindler, gentler leadership to the Jets, and they reacted well to that style while going through a philosophical overhaul on both sides of the ball.

Change for the worse: The Bills' effort to run the West Coast offense quickly stalled as they found out that Rob Johnson wasn't the right guy to pull it off.

Free-agent flop: Matthew Hatchette, WR, Jets. The Jets hoped Hatchette's 6-3 frame would make him a nice target in the West Coast offense. He made two catches–and nearly $1 million.

About to cash in: Antowain Smith, RB, Patriots. A salary-cap castoff by the Bills in the off-season, Smith experienced a career rebirth in New England. The Pats should try their best to keep him.

Realignment reality: Bill Belichick won't be able to torture Peyton Manning and the AFC South-bound Colts with his confounding game plans twice a season anymore.

AFC Central

Best surprise: Kordell Stewart, QB, Steelers. He is nothing new to Pittsburgh, but with a new coordinator, this old franchise with its new park finally was able to catch up to its new-age Slash.

Biggest bust: Ravens defense. It was supposed to dominate the league, halting in their tracks everybody but Father Time. However, it was good enough to stop only two Titans: QB Steve McNair from reaching the end zone (the second time) on Monday Night Football and DE Kevin Carter from receiving this most dubious honor.

Best Band-Aid: Oliver Ross, OL, Steelers. One week he started for LT Wayne Gandy and rendered Ravens DE Michael McCrary invisible. In the last six weeks, Ross subbed for RG Rich Tylski and helped keep the offense rolling.

Most painful injury: Jamal Lewis, RB, Ravens. A knee injury that hurt not only the offense but the defense, which was on the field more often without Lewis chewing up the clock and spitting out the first downs.

Play to remember: Titans QB Steve McNair getting into the end zone with a game-tying touchdown as time expired against the Ravens, then—because of a Baltimore penalty—having to try again and getting stuffed ... or was that stiffed?

Play to forget: The Browns forgot to cover Bears RB James Allen, whose late arrival was just in time to make a game-tying TD catch on the final play in regulation. Without Allen's catch, Cleveland wouldn't be wishing it could forget Bears FS Mike Brown scoring on an interception for the second straight week in overtime.

WR David Patten scores the second of the Patriots' three touchdowns (and their only offensive TD) in New England's 24-17 upset victory at Pittsburgh in the AFC title game. (Photo by Bob Leverone/The Sporting News.)

Change for the better: Pittsburgh elevating Mike Mularkey to offensive coordinator. He was the catalyst in Stewart's metamorphosis.

Change for the worse: Jaguars defensive coordinator Gary Moeller goes soft with a lead in the final minutes, allowing the Ravens to rally and win, 24-21, on Shannon Sharpe's toe-dragging TD catch. Webster's plans to define "prevent defense" as something that prevents Moeller from keeping this job.

Free-agent flop: Elvis Grbac, QB, Ravens. A costly Dilfer.

About to cash in: Jason Gildon, OLB, Steelers, and Reinard Wilson, DE, Bengals. A pair of big-play men each with a bunch of sacks, each is eligible to bag the big money as free agents.

Realignment reality: For the AFC South-bound Jaguars and Titans, no more outdoor division games in cold northern ports and no annual peltings by beverage bottles thrown by fans in Cleveland.

AFC West

Best surprise: Priest Holmes, RB, Chiefs. It took the team a couple of weeks to discover what it had—and 1,555 rushing yards and 614 receiving yards later, do you think Baltimore, his former team, wish it had spent its free-agent money on Holmes instead of Elvis Grbac?

Biggest bust: Trent Green, QB, Chiefs, and his wide receivers. For much of the season, Green couldn't hit water with an anchor. As for his receivers, what does it say when Eddie Kennison shows up at midseason and is the best of the lot? However, if Green and Co. weren't so bad, coach Dick Vermeil wouldn't have tripped over this year's best surprise.

Best Band-Aid: Shaun Alexander, RB, Seahawks. When the usually durable Ricky Watters went down with the first of two serious injuries, this second-year playmaker opened Mike Holmgren's eyes with a team record for rushing yards in a game.

Most painful injury: Ed McCaffrey, WR, Broncos. It doesn't matter how many talented running backs you have on the roster when all you really need is one more receiver.

Play to remember: Chargers QB Doug Flutie scrambling for the game-winning touchdown in the final seconds against his former team, the Bills.

Play to forget: On the eve of a game, Kennison quit, leaving Denver gasping for help at wideout. He tried to return, was released, was signed by the Chiefs and then helped beat the Broncos.

Change for the better: Seahawks QB Trent Dilfer replacing an injured Matt Hasselbeck—both times.

Change for the worse: Raiders K Sebastian Janikowski deciding to test his kicking leg on the dance floor.

Free-agent flop: Alex Molden, CB, Chargers. Part of G.M. John Butler's spring spending spree. He didn't play well early, lost his starting job to rook-

Bears LB Brian Urlacher made the Pro Bowl for the second straight season and led a Chicago defense that allowed a league-low 203 points. (Photo by Robert Seale/The Sporting News.)

ie Tay Cody and was injured for the last 10 games

About to cash in: Tony Gonzalez, TE, Chiefs. The best in the NFL at his position, Gonzalez can and will void his contract after this season. But somebody needs to tell him that his silly threat of bolting for the NBA won't help him jack up his sticker price.

Realignment reality: As Seattle leaves for the NFC West, there is one less rival to distract Raiders owner Al Davis from his disdain for Broncos owner Pat Bowlen, Broncos coach Mike Shanahan and Chiefs G.M. Carl Peterson.

NFC East

Best surprise: Troy Hambrick, RB, Cowboys. After carrying the ball all of six times for 28 yards as an undrafted rookie last season, Hambrick parlayed a good training camp into 11 starting assignments, a 5.1-yard rushing average and a bigger-than-imagined role in the Cowboys' future plans.

Biggest bust: Jeff George, QB, Redskins. He was an awful fit for Marty Schottenheimer's West Coast offense and was released after Washington scored just three points in its first two games.

Best Band-Aid: Hank Fraley, C, Eagles. When Bubba Miller went down with a season-ending injury, the Eagles were forced to call upon Fraley, a former Robert Morris player who entered the NFL as an undrafted free agent. He didn't disappoint.

Most painful injury: Kyle Vanden Bosch, DE, Cardinals. The rookie got off to a terrific start and even returned a fumble for a TD in his third NFL game. But he suffered a season-ending injury and Arizona never found an adequate replacement.

Play to remember: Care to guess how many hearts skipped a beat at Veterans Stadium a week ago before the Eagles' Damon Moore was able to push the Giants' Ron Dixon out of bounds at the 4, preserving a 24-21 Eagles victory?

Play to forget: Care to guess how many times sportscasters around the U.S. replayed that clip of Cardinals K Bill Gramatica injuring his knee while celebrating his field goal in Week 14?

Change for the better: The Eagles' decision to dump starting WRs Charles Johnson and Torrance Small after last season and replace them with James Thrash and Todd Pinkston.

Change for the worse: The Redskins' decision not to re-sign Brad Johnson and to go with Jeff George at quarterback.

Free-agent flop: Kenny Holmes, DE, Giants. Given a chance to escape Jevon Kearse's long shadow in Tennessee, he fell under an even bigger one cast by Michael Strahan.

About to cash in: Jeremiah Trotter, LB, Eagles. He signed a one-year tender worth $1.15 million a year ago, gambling that he would have a big season and cash in after this season. He did, and he will.

Realignment reality: How will the Cardinals, who couldn't hang with the Giants and Eagles in recent years, avoid being hung two times each by the Rams and 49ers in the NFC West next year?

NFC Central

Best surprise: Rosevelt Colvin, OLB, Bears. He took another big step in his development as an emerging star and leader on a top defense. Not only did he raise his game in subtle ways, including improving his technique against tight ends, he was used at end in the nickel and put up 10 1/2 sacks.

Biggest bust: Randy Moss, WR, Vikings. He didn't produce enough big plays to offset all the controversy and distractions he caused. The Vikings' new coach is going to have a big challenge on his hands.

Best Band-Aid: Karl Williams, WR, Bucs. Rising from his role as the fourth receiver, Williams provided a decent complement to Keyshawn Johnson. Almost all of Williams' catches were big.

Most painful injury: LeRoy Butler, SS, Packers. Green Bay's defense hasn't been the same since Butler's loss to a season-ending shoulder injury in Week 10. Because standout FS Darren Sharper hasn't been able to focus as much on his normal playmaking duties, he hasn't been as effective.

Plays to remember: In consecutive weeks, Bears FS Mike Brown grabbed deflected passes and returned them for touchdowns to win overtime games. After that, the Bears knew it was their season.

Play to forget: Any of the plays in which Randy Moss didn't feel like putting out.

Change for the better: By signing massive DTs Ted Washington and Keith Traylor, the Bears were able to shut down running games and provide their linebackers with the freedom to roam and make plays.

Change for the worse: The Lions benched Charlie Batch after one game and gave Ty Detmer a brief shot. Detmer was a disaster—he had 1 TD pass, 10 INTs and a 43.5 QB rating before throwing for two TDs last Sunday—and so were the Lions.

Free-agent flop: Lance Johnstone, DE, Vikings. Minnesota signed Johnstone to produce double-digit sacks, but he only had 5 1/2 (before Monday's game) and lost his starting job.

About to cash in: R.W. McQuarters, CB, Bears. A former first-round washout with the 49ers, McQuarters solidified Chicago's secondary with his playmaking ability and physical style against the run. He is at the top of the Bears' re-sign list, but it will be an expensive proposition.

Realignment reality: The Buccaneers, who are 0-20 when the temperature is 40 and below, gleefully say goodbye to annual trips to Chicago and Green Bay and hello to the NFC South.

NFC West

Best surprise: Garrison Hearst, RB, 49ers. The comeback king. It's hard to believe he made it back at all from a severe ankle injury, much less at such a high level of performance.

Biggest bust: Norman Hand, DT, Saints. His poor conditioning and shaky play devastated the Saints' run defense.

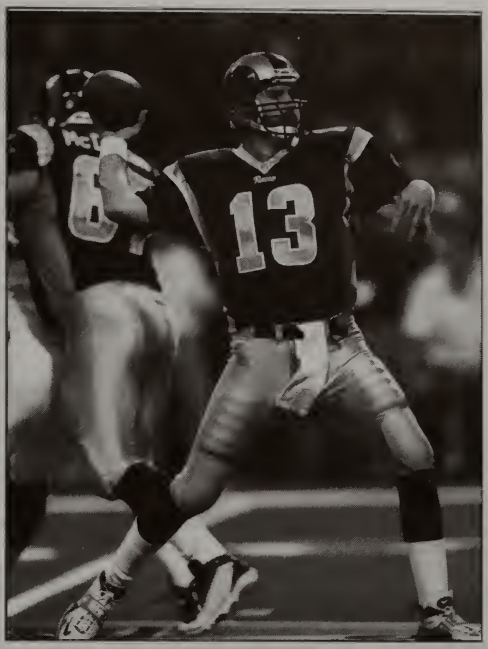
Best Band-Aid: Tommy Polley, OLB, Rams. The rookie filled in at both outside linebacker spots when Mark Fields and Don Davis were out with injuries. Polley was so effective, he eventually took Fields' starting job.

Most painful injury: Willie Roaf, LT, Saints. His torn ACL was a huge blow to the Saints. Replacement Daryl Terrell allowed multi-sack games to the Bucs' Simeon Rice, the Jets' John Abraham, the Rams' Grant Wistrom and the 49ers' Andre Carter.

Play to remember: Acting upset before a fourth-and-1 play against the 49ers, Rams QB Kurt Warner stormed toward referee Bob McElwee as if to call a timeout. At that instant, the ball was snapped to Marshall Faulk, who surged for a first down. Faulk scored on the next play, and the Rams won, 27-14, in Week 13.

Play to forget: Kyle Turley's helmet-throwing meltdown cost the Saints a potential comeback victory over the Jets and was emblematic of the team's lack of on-field discipline.

Change for the better: The Rams tore up their defense in the offseason and created a vastly improved model. They were hoping for average—and they got more.



Kurt Warner led the NFL in completions, yards and touchdowns in leading the Rams to the Super Bowl for the second time in three seasons. (Photo by Dilip Vishwanat/The Sporting News.)

Change for the worse: The Panthers' offseason purge of veterans led to a complete collapse.

Free-agent flop: Albert Connell, WR, Saints. Not only was he a big disappointment on the field, he was a disruptive force off it. The only quick moves he showed were around Deuce McAllister's locker.

About to cash in: Leonard Little, LE, Rams. With big-time pass-rushing ability, Little produced 14 sacks in 13 games (he missed three games with a knee injury). He will be in demand as a situational pass rusher, but the Rams will make a strong effort to retain him.

Realignment reality: The defenses of the Saints, Falcons and Panthers catch a major break. In moving into the NFC South, they get to swap game-planning nightmares in St. Louis and San Francisco for the Bucs' pedestrian attack.

WILD-CARD GAMES

By VINNIE IYER

Reprinted from the January 21, 2002 issue of The Sporting News

Extra Points: Observations on the wild-card playoffs

Raiders WR Jerry Rice wears the No. 80, but the magic number was 20 during his impressive 9-catch, 183-yard performance in Oakland's 38-24 wild-card victory over the Jets. Six of the future Hall of Famer's receptions went for 20 yards or more, including his last, a 21-yard grab that was the 20th playoff touchdown of Rice's career, one short of the NFL record shared by Thurman Thomas and Emmitt Smith. If Rice, 39, continues to play like he's in his twenties, he'll get plenty of opportunities to break the mark. ...

Another reason the Raiders broke out of their slump was the performance of another former 49er, RB Charlie Garner, who picked up 158 of Oakland's 215 rushing yards. For the Silver and Black, it was a welcome flashback to 2000, when the Raiders featured the league's best ground game. They ranked only 24th (103.4 yards per game) this season. ...

Green Bay's run defense went into the playoffs struggling, but it got a big boost from veteran gap-clogging DT Gilbert Brown against the 49ers, the NFC's best running team. The 339-pound Brown helped limit San Francisco to 71 yards rushing (or just more than half of the 49ers' 140.2-yard average) in the Packers' 25-15 home wild-card victory. Brown even got to QB Jeff Garcia for his first sack in more than four years. ...

QB Brett Favre, as usual, was sharp at home in the cold, showing a good mix of laser beams and touch passes. It will be crucial for the three-time league MVP to keep it up on the road in a dome in his first start against his former understudy, two-time MVP Kurt Warner, this week. ...

The Eagles' offense is clearly at its best with QB Donovan McNabb scrambling and RB Duce Staley finding room to run after the catch. McNabb led the team in rushing (57 yards) during the 31-9 rout of Tampa Bay. Staley turned the game in the first half with a 23-yard touchdown reception. When the Eagles line up for a more traditional backfield run, rookie Correll Buckhalter is the most effective in that role. ...

The Eagles' stellar secondary, led by SS Damon Moore's two picks, intercepted Buccaneers QB Brad Johnson four times. Featuring two Pro Bowlers, FS Brian Dawkins and CB Troy Vincent, that unit has both the talent and depth to carry Philadelphia deep into the playoffs. ...

The Ravens dug up last's year Super Bowl-run blueprint and followed it to the letter during their 20-3 win at Miami. They stayed dedicated to running the ball—50 rushes produced 226 yards—and eliminated turnovers, taking most of the offensive pressure off QB Elvis Grbac, who responded with a big pass play the few times one was necessary. The Ravens' defense then did what it usually does: stop the run (Miami had only 46 rushing yards) and generate takeaways (three). Along with rediscovering a familiar and successful game plan, the Ravens are back to flashing the old championship swagger. Look for their confidence to be a major factor this weekend when they meet their AFC Central rivals in Pittsburgh. The two teams split their regular-season meetings.

DIVISIONAL PLAYOFFS

Extra Points: Observations on the divisional playoffs

New England QB Tom Brady appeared as happy as a little kid playing in the winter's first snow while celebrating his fourth-quarter touchdown run in the Patriots' 16-13 overtime win against the Raiders. In displaying savvy well beyond his one year of starting experience, Brady also seems to bring a youthful exuberance and a resiliency that resonates through the Patriots' entire offense. ...

The Raiders were left in complete shock when the ball that was knocked loose from Brady by CB Charles Woodson with 1:43 remaining was ruled an incomplete pass and not a fumble. Oakland's defensive intensity was nowhere near the same after the original call was reversed through instant replay. The drop in concentration allowed the Patriots to finish their march to a game-tying field goal and then a game-winning field goal in overtime. ...

Donovan McNabb was the league's "it" quarterback before the season started. After a mostly ordinary regular season, he is living up to the hype in the playoffs. So much for the Bears trying to "spy" McNabb—although Chicago's defense did a good job of keeping him from running wild, it failed to hold up in coverage for the extended time that he constantly bought with his rollouts. Playing back in a contain defense, the Bears could not consistently cover RB Duce Staley and TEs Chad Lewis and Jeff Thomason. ...

The injury to RB Jerome Bettis could be deemed insignificant to the Steelers' postseason. Backups Chris Fuamatu-Ma'afala and Amos Zereoue complement each other well and have the support of a stout offensive line and the best all-around run-blocking team in the league. The Steelers were excellent in blowing the Ravens off the ball for the ballcarrier as everyone got involved entangling defenders. QB Kordell Stewart and WR Hines Ward sprung key blocks to set the physical tone early in their 27-10 win. ...

It used to be that only the Rams' offense was must-see TV, but their top-notch defense was more exciting to watch in their 45-17 rout of the Packers.

CONFERENCE CHAMPIONSHIPS

The Patriots, who started the season 1-3, won eight games in a row to reach the Super Bowl. Their last loss was a 24-17 setback to the Rams on November 18. ...

Starting QB Tom Brady was removed from the game in the final two minutes of the first quarter after his ankle was rolled over by Pittsburgh safety Lee Flowers. Drew Bledsoe, who hadn't played since suffering a punctured lung on September 23, came into the game and completed 10 of 21 passes for 102 yards to lead the underdog Patriots to victory. ...

Pittsburgh was the top rushing team in the NFL with 173 yards per game during the regular season, but they managed to rush for only one first down in the first half, and finished with only 58 yards on the ground. Jerome Bettis, who had been sidelined for over a month with a groin injury, managed only eight yards on nine carries. ...

New England benefited from two big returns from its special teams unit. The first came in the opening quarter when Troy Brown returned a punt 55 yards to give the Patriots a 7-0 lead. The second came when Steelers kicker Kris Brown attempted a 34-yard field goal attempt in the third quarter. On the play, the ball was blocked and picked up by Troy Brown, who ran 11 yards and lateralled it to Antwan Harris, who ran 49 yards for a touchdown to put the Pats ahead 21-3. ...

Pittsburgh managed two touchdowns in the third quarter, but the offense then stalled as QB Kordell Stewart threw interceptions on each of the Steelers' last two drives of the quarter. ...

The Eagles, who began their season against the Rams, ended it against St. Louis with a 29-24 loss. ...

Four plays later, he scored to put the Rams ahead 29-17. ...

Just after the first minute of the game, Eagles QB Donovan McNabb was sacked and fumbled on Philadelphia's 21 yard line. Five plays later, Isaac Bruce caught a 5-yard TD pass from Kurt Warner. It looked like the beginning of another Rams rout, but the Eagles battled throughout the game. They led 17-13 at halftime and didn't lose the lead until late in the third quarter. ...

CB Aeneas Williams, who scored a pair of touchdowns on interception returns a week earlier against Green Bay, intercepted a pass from McNabb with 1:55 left to clinch the game for the Rams. ...

Philadelphia managed only 74 yards in the second half, and in the third quarter they ran only five plays. ...

The Eagles had 45 sacks during the regular season, but were able to sack Warner only once during the game. Philadelphia was also unable to intercept any passes from Warner, who tossed 22 during the regular season. ...

Warner entered the game after dealing with a variety of ailments the previous week. He was returning from a stomach virus, his thumb had been injured early in the season and had bothered him throughout the year, and he took an injection of painkiller to help him deal with bruised ribs he suffered a week earlier in the Green Bay game.

SUPER BOWL 36

AT LOUISIANA SUPERDOME, NEW ORLEANS, FEBRUARY 3, 2002

By PAUL ATTNER

Reprinted from the February 11, 2002 issue of The Sporting News

Standing Pat

The Patriots dared to dream. They dared to think they could win a Super Bowl when few thought likewise. They dared to believe they could finish off a season improbable to conceive, much less execute. They dared to accept the challenge of manhandling the Rams' receivers, a concept so frightening that it has been foreign to everyone else in the league.

They dreamed what makes sports so entertaining, so invigorating, so mesmerizing: the thought that this dead-end bunch of players—waiver-wire alumni, discards, has-beens and wannabes and an aw-shucks quarterback who fell asleep in the locker room before the biggest game of his life—not only could take on the symbol of all that is mighty in the NFL, but emerge triumphant.

These Patriots, sure to lose by at least 14 points, once 0-2 in September, their starting quarterback sidelined with a crushing injury, their main hope just to win one game, now will become the rallying point for every downtrodden team, for every unobtainable goal, for every outrageous wish. My God, if they could do this, if they could stand up to the almost mythical St. Louis offense, one of the mightiest the NFL has produced, and outplay the Rams, outthink them and, in the most unlikely ending to this incredible game, win on a 48-yard field goal as time expired, why can't the rest of us be similarly rewarded if we too refuse to accept the inevitable?

In Super Bowl history, only the Jets' sweet victory over the Colts in the third version of this extravaganza will outshine what the Patriots accomplished Sunday in their 20-17 win in Super Bowl 36. It was an extraordinary demonstration of the power of "team," because there is no way the Patriots should be this good. They just believe they are, and for them, that has been enough.

"You see it in sports all the time," linebacker Willie McGinest says. "You got a bunch of guys who believe in themselves, but no matter what they do, nobody gives them a chance. People need to believe in us now."

But it was quarterback Tom Brady, that former backup now Super Bowl MVP, who might have put it best: "Well, we've got a whole team full of underdogs, and now we're the top dogs." Outside the NFL, the Patriots' exploit will be the fodder of nostalgic reminiscing for years to come: how the coaching of Bill Belichick this postseason has been among the most brilliant in league history; how their aggressive secondary coverage, bent on beating up the Rams' receivers, turned a track meet into a marathon and made Kurt Warner seem somewhat human; how their opportunistic defense forced three turnovers, which ultimately became 17 points; how their quarterback could throw for just 92 yards before the final 90 seconds, then complete five passes for 53 yards to set up Adam Vinatieri's second game-winning kick in their last three playoff games.

But within the NFL, this Patriots victory will have long-term effects far more impactful than nostalgia. This already is a league in which the offensive expansion of the Rams is an exception rather than the norm. And now the Patriots' seasonlong blueprint for success—a constantly changing defense, exceptional special teams and a conservative, low-risk offense built to avoid mistakes rather than generate points—will convince even more owners and coaches that less passing and more clock-controlling schemes are shortcuts to league championships.

Want more offensive pizzazz in the NFL, more Rams-like copycats? Forget it. The Patriots have taken care of that.

Fans may love the fun created by the Rams—even the Patriots admit they enjoyed watching St. Louis play—but they have won only one Super Bowl in the three years of their prime. And that's not good enough. Opponents look at the Rams and see too much time—too much time to develop the precise, downfield, vertical nature of the philosophy, too much time to assemble the special quarterback and legion of gifted receivers needed to execute it properly. And the one thing lacking in this league is time because owners watch too many other clubs such as the Patriots sprint from awful to good virtually overnight and expect their own team to make a similar turnaround. So, to most coaches, it makes no sense to hope you can find another Warner, with his remarkable accuracy and strong arm. They will look at how Belichick took Brady, a sixth-round draft choice, and coached him well enough so that he rarely makes mistakes and almost always makes the pivotal play, and they will convince themselves they can do the same with their quarterback.

They will worry about the ever-increasing complexities of defenses—"this is a defense-dominated league, no question about it," grumbles Cowboys consultant Ernie Zampese, who has coached offense in the NFL for four decades—and will quickly decide that the most efficient, safest offensive solution is to teach the short-passing, high-percentage approach of the Patriots or, even more so, the West Coast scheme. That's right—the brilliant creation of Bill Walsh is helping to dumb down offense in the NFL.

Unlike the vertical (read: downfield for more than 15 yards) passing approach of St. Louis, the newest generation of short-passing, West Coast teams has taken Walsh's scheme and turned it into a yawner that produces endless quick completions, limited points, few risks and way too many punts.

Instead of the Rams' daring, we have the Steelers-Patriots AFC championship game in which, at one juncture, the teams had produced 10 points and 10 punts. Really, which offensive teams besides St. Louis are enjoyable to watch? The Packers because of Brett Favre. The 49ers because they run the Walsh system right. Any team coordinated by Norv Turner, another teacher of the vertical offense. The Colts because of Peyton Manning. The Vikings—if Randy Moss decides to try, which he doesn't do often enough despite commissioner Paul Tagliabue's claims to the contrary. The Eagles? Donovan McNabb is fun, for sure, but the Philadelphia offense remains a work in progress.

"Troublesome" is how Walsh views the NFL's offensive state. "I see way too much inadequate quarterback play," he says. "I see teams that execute poorly and don't use their personnel very well. Quite frankly, I don't see a lot of good football from week to week."

This is today's NFL: The league's completion percentage this season (59.0) was the highest in history, a reflection of the controlled, low-risk backbone of the West Coast offense. But the yards per completion (11.5) was an all-time low. And remember, that's despite the Rams' influence. The Patriots now are Super Bowl champions despite having only the 19th-best offense in the league this fall.

"Everything on offense is programmed, there is no individuality," says Ron Wolf, the former Packers general manager. "There are some brilliant offensive minds in this game, but they have systems, and they are sticking to them regardless. When I first started, if you saw a stiff come into the game on defense, you went after him. Now, if it doesn't fit into the script and the computer, that doesn't happen. So what if the defense has gone to a five-man front? Stick to the plan. It's called CYA football—cover your ass."

So coordinators are being hired to run a "system" even if the team's personnel doesn't fit. The Lions went from 9-7 to 2-14 in large part because they were ill-suited to execute coach Marty Mornhinweg's West Coast approach. The Bills tried the West Coast way in 2001 even though quarterback Rob Johnson will never be mistaken for the prototype West Coast quarterback. The result was miserable. They gained decent yardage, but on third down and in the red zone, they flopped. With a new offensive coordinator for 2002, you had better not mention West Coast offense in Buffalo anymore.

"I want the Bills' offense," says general manager Tom Donahoe. "I don't like systems. Too many guys are wedded to a system, and they run it come hell or high water even if the personnel doesn't fit it. Good coaching is putting your players in positions where they have a chance to be successful. And I don't see that happening enough in this league. The problem with the West Coast is, unless you have Steve Young and Jerry Rice, it's not going to be the same."

How many games did you see this past season where teams were inside the 20, yet either didn't throw one pass into the end zone or tried one of those overused fade patterns with no chance of success? Ah, but they didn't waste a chance to kick that beloved field goal.

Here is a typical scenario that we witness every week in the NFL. It is third-and-7, and the defense overloads one side with a bunch of blitzers. The quarterback reads what is coming and does what he is taught, which is to find the hot receiver. He doesn't have the inclination, or time, to look for his second or third read, which may produce a big play. Instead, he goes for the quick dump-off, which is what the defense wants, because that dump-off typically is good for 2 or 3 yards. No first down. Bring on the punting team.

"This is the NFL today, a punt-fest," says Brian Baldinger, a Sporting News Radio analyst and former NFL lineman. "It is a ridiculous horizontal passing game. It's boring. Fans hate it; you can hear the booing from the home fans. Teams are so afraid of making mistakes that they would rather punt than take what they consider a risk."

The advocates of short passes will tell you that their success depends on receivers breaking tackles, that those short passes should become sufficient gains if the timing is correct and the receiver does his part. But the quality of receiving in the NFL is almost as poor as quarterback play, and those broken tackles don't happen often enough to keep drives from dying.

"They expect things to happen that aren't necessarily going to happen," Wolf says. "It is a precarious way to live if you want offensive consistency."

Even so, the Patriots throw more screen passes than anyone in the league, and coordinator Charlie Weis, who will take an occasional shot down the field, relishes in the effectiveness of quick tosses to receiver Troy Brown, isolating him one-on-one on a cornerback.

"That gives me Troy Brown in the open field with one guy to beat," says Weis. "I like those odds. He makes lots of yards on those plays. It is like a sweep for us." But if defenses adjust, those passes easily can become no-gainers. Fullback Marc Edwards described the Patriots' signature offensive alignment this way: "Two-tight end formation—and run it right up the middle." That's the NFL offense these days in 11 frightening words.

In this postseason, the Patriots scored just three offensive touchdowns. They averaged only 297 yards. With 3:44 left against the Rams, protecting a 17-10 lead and needing only one first down to run out the clock—St. Louis was out of timeouts, no surprise there—here's what the Patriots did: ran Antowain Smith, which went for minus-2 yards; passed over the middle to Smith for 4 yards, and on third-and-8, ran a sweep for Smith for 3 yards instead of passing downfield. They punted, and in three quick plays—all vertical passes—the Rams had it tied at 17, the final 26 yards coming on a Warner-to-Ricky Proehl pass.

That's when the Patriots were forced to end their conservative approach. In eight plays, Brady moved them 53 yards, including a game-turning 23-yard crossing pattern completion to Brown against a cover 2 scheme designed precisely to stop that kind of route. "We've had good luck all season with our two-minute drill," says Belichick. "Maybe we should (open it up) more often."

But throughout the game, the remarkable Brady did exactly what Belichick wanted, and that was to avoid mistakes. The only way to beat the Rams is to force turnovers while not making any errors yourself. The Patriots did just that, winning the takeaway competition, 3-0. They also ran just well enough—133 yards, including 92 by Smith—to at least take some pressure off their defense. Other coaches may wish they could pass like the Rams, but they feel safer duplicating the Patriots, who are one season away from being 5-11.

"You can't blame coaches," Wolf says. "This is a two-year league now. Never thought I would say that, but that's how sad it is. Do it quickly or you are fired and someone else is brought in. There is no thought to development of teams. It is quick fix, do it right away. So now you have people playing not to lose. John Paul Jones once said, 'He who will not risk cannot win.' It's not that way anymore with the NFL."

Warner, who led the NFL with a 101.4 passer rating during the regular season, was harrassed by the Patriots into a rather pedestrian 78.3 mark in Super Bowl 36. (Photo by Bob Leverone/The Sporting News.)

Indeed, nothing in today's NFL climate seems conducive toward breaking this downward spiral of awful offense. It's a given that it takes longer to mold offensive continuity than defensive cohesiveness. But free agency, and the resulting constant player movement and roster turnover, breaks up continuity faster than you can say "Warner to Bruce, touchdown." Offensive lines keep changing annually, for example, so just try to perfect protections against all those bizarre blitzes being introduced every season. It's much easier to protect quarterbacks, and limit turnovers, if you pull it in, attempt to run it a bit, throw high-percentage passes and lean on your defense. That's how you win today. Just ask the Patriots or Bears. Or the Ravens of 2000.

And this lack of owner patience is a killer, too. Since the end of the 2000 season, there have been 12 coaching vacancies. And if you are hoping for offensive changes in the league, the trend set by the new hirings is troublesome. Other than Dick Vermeil and Mornhinweg last year and Steve Spurrier and Mike Tice this season, every new coach is defensive-oriented.

Ironically, this swing to defensive dominance and offensive timidness is contrary to how the rules are set up. With the liberal interpretation of holding, restrictions on bumping in the secondary and quick flags on pass interference, the atmosphere has never been more favorable for offensive outbreaks.

"Cripes, they never call offensive pass interference," says ESPN analyst Joe Theismann. "The most scared player in every game is the cornerback. He can't win. You've got to challenge him six times or more a game deep. That's just a minimum. If you don't do that, it is bad coaching."

Vinatieri's 48-yard field goal as time expired broke a 17-17 tie, the hearts of Rams fans and made believers of even the Patriots' harshest critics. (Photo by Bob Leverone/The Sporting News.)

Yet listen to Charley Casserly, general manager of the new Houston Texans, who are starting to assemble a roster for next season. "Starting off, we want to play good defense and special teams and just don't get beat on offense," he says. "Let's try to hang around in the game and maybe be able to fall into something that helps us win."

Sounds just like the majority of the teams in the league right now. Sounds like the Patriots. Casserly envisions eventually adding speed receivers so the Texans can open up their offense. And succeed in the playoffs. "You can make the playoffs without being good (on offense) but can't win in the playoffs without being solid throwing the ball," he says. "Defenses can load up against the run, but if you have a top receiver, you are dictating to them what you want to do on offense."

But he looks around the league and sees teams that refuse to evolve as he envisions the Texans. "Teams aren't stretching the field," he acknowledges. "And I don't see any change on the horizon. The current formula gets you good quick, so why should it change?"

Whether fair or not, the Rams will scare away clones for another reason. The Patriots were convinced they were tougher and more physical going into the game. Now, after being knocked around for most of the night, the Rams will see the finesse rap that has haunted them stick even longer.

"We are going to hit them and show them we are around," safety Lawyer Milloy warned earlier in Super Bowl week. By then, the Patriots had become convinced the Rams would flinch. "The Rams' way is a lot more finesse than offense," said inside linebacker coach Pepper Johnson. "It is good by them because you have finesse guys on that team. Myself, when I think about football, you are just not tired when you finish a game, you are worn down and beat up and have a couple of bruises."

Indeed, the Patriots' defensive backs asked their coaches to allow them to play man against the Rams, to bump them at the line, to slam them at every opportunity. If nothing else, they threw off the delicate timing of the St. Louis offense, frequently giving Warner no one to target, leaving him frustrated that he could throw two bad interceptions, one that was returned 47 yards by cornerback Ty Law for a second-quarter touchdown.

But because these are the Patriots, the game always seems extraordinarily close. A better performance by their offense and the Rams would not have been able to rally at the end and almost force overtime.

Still, when Vinatieri's kick easily cleared the crossbar, none of the Patriots' struggles in this game, or for the season, mattered anymore. This is a team that had every right not to succeed; after all, the Patriots carried on despite quarterback Drew Bledsoe's injury, the antics of receiver Terry Glenn, the death of quarterbacks coach Dick Rehbein. But Belichick's remarkable will and steely determination, coupled with his players' unflinching faith in their coach's teachings, combined to help them walk away with this singular triumph.

"My advice is to believe in yourself," says Brady. "Only you know what you are capable of. No one else does." That, the Patriots believe, will be the lasting lesson of Super Bowl 36.

FOOTBALL COMES TO MONDAY NIGHT

Although few people at the time could have guessed at the kind of popularity the show would come to enjoy, ABC's Monday Night Football debuted on September 21, 1970 with the telecast of a Jets-Browns game from Cleveland Stadium. With 85,703 fans looking on, coach Blanton Collier's Browns beat Weeb Ewbank's Jets, 31-21. Though the game had little of the excitement of future Monday night encounters, it did have a few noteworthy accomplishments. Jets quarterback Joe Namath completed 19 of 32 passes for 299 yards and one touchdown, but he also was intercepted three times, turnovers that proved crucial to the Browns' victory. Homer Jones returned a kickoff 94 yards for a Cleveland touchdown.

THE '76 BUCS: THE WRONG KIND OF FAME

Four seasons after the Miami Dolphins went through an entire season without losing a game, another Florida team also made NFL history, but not the kind it would have preferred. In their inaugural season the Tampa Bay Buccaneers failed to win a game, going 0-16 as a member of the AFC's Western Division. Coach John McKay's Bucs scored a league-low 125 points and allowed 412, a total surpassed only by the league's other 1976 expansion team, the Seattle Seahawks. Tampa Bay failed to score more than 20 points in any game and did not come within three points of winning a game. One of those three-point defeats came in Week 6, when the Seahawks beat the Bucs, 13-10, a victory preserved when veteran linebacker Mike Curtis blocked a 35-yard field goal attempt by Bucs kicker Dave Green with 42 seconds left.

SMASHING DEBUT FOR BIG EARL

Houston running back Earl Campbell, winner of the Heisman Trophy at Texas the year before and the league's top draft pick, gave NFL fans a preview of things to come by rushing for a league-high 1,450 yards and scoring 13 touchdowns in one of the most electrifying rookie seasons in NFL history. Campbell dethroned defending league rushing champ Walter Payton by 55 yards despite carrying the ball 31 fewer times. More important, he took a team that had not been to the playoffs in eight years to the AFC championship game. Campbell's best game of 1978 came under the brightest of lights: a 199-yard, four-touchdown performance in a 35-30 victory over Miami on Monday, November 20. He capped his big evening by scoring the Oilers' final touchdown on an 81-yard run in the fourth quarter.

AIR CORYELL TAKES TO THE SKIES

Although their season would end in disappointment—a loss to Oakland in the AFC championship game—few teams were more exciting to watch in 1980 than coach Don Coryell's San Diego Chargers. Only eight receivers caught passes for 1,000 or more yards that year, but San Diego had three of them: John Jefferson (who led the league with 1,340 yards), Kellen Winslow (1,290) and Charlie Joiner (1,132). It marked the first time in history that three receivers on the same team each topped 1,000 yards in the same season. In addition, Winslow caught 89 passes to set a record for receptions by a tight end and Jefferson became the first player to begin his NFL career with three consecutive 1,000-yard seasons. Not surprisingly, the Chargers won the AFC West title for the second year in a row, the only team to repeat from the 1979 season.

As a result of a 57-day players' strike, the 1982 NFL regular season schedule was reduced from 16 weeks to 9. At the conclusion of the regular season, a 16-team Super Bowl Tournament was held. Eight teams from each conference were seeded 1 through 8 based on their records during regular season play.

Miami finished ahead of Cincinnati based on a better conference record. Pittsburgh won common games tiebreaker with San Diego after New York Jets were eliminated from three-way tie based on conference record. Cleveland finished ahead of Buffalo and Seattle based on better conference record. Minnesota, Atlanta, St. Louis and Tampa Bay seeds were determined by best won-lost record in conference games. Detroit finished ahead of New Orleans and the New York Giants based on a better conference record.

LT: A ROOKIE TO REMEMBER

The 1981 season was a big one for rookies (six made the Pro Bowl), but none had more impact than Giants linebacker Lawrence Taylor, who had no problem adjusting to the pro game after an All-American career at North Carolina. The second player drafted in 1981, Taylor was simply marvelous, helping to make a good New York defense with veterans like linebacker Harry Carson and cornerback Mark Haynes great. In 16 games (all starts) Taylor had 133 tackles, 10.5 sacks, recovered a fumble and intercepted a pass. He followed that up with 14 tackles and two sacks in two playoff games, the Giants' first postseason action since 1963. For his efforts Taylor was a unanimous All-NFL first-team selection, a Pro Bowl starter and the Associated Press Defensive Player of the Year.

CAPITAL GAINS FOR THE REDSKINS

Although they failed to successfully defend their Super Bowl championship, the Washington Redskins did just about everything else right in 1983, especially on offense. Washington scored 541 points, the most in NFL history and 62 more than the next highest scoring team that year. Running back John Riggins scored a record 24 touchdowns, rushed for a club-record 1,347 yards and set a league mark by rushing for a TD in 13 consecutive games. Mark Moseley's 161 points set a new league standard for kickers. But as good as Riggins and Moseley were, the league's Most Valuable Player, in voting conducted by the Associated Press, was quarterback Joe Theismann, who threw 29 TD passes, compiled a 97.0 passer rating and had streaks of 161 and 104 consecutive passes without an interception.

DA BEARS

The 1985 Chicago Bears may not have been the best team ever, but they were certainly among the most colorful. Running back Walter Payton suggested his teammates could have stepped right from the pages of "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest." Rookie defensive tackle William Perry, whose girth earned him the nickname "The Refrigerator," said "I was big when I was little" when queried about his weight. The players cut a popular music video "The Super Bowl Shuffle"—while the regular season was still in progress. But there were good reasons for the cockiness: the Bears were good. They scored 456 points and allowed 198, one of the lowest totals ever for a 16-game season. Their final record, including the playoffs, was 18-1, and they outscored their three postseason opponents by a combined 91-10. Chicago's 46-10 rout of New England in the Super Bowl was the most lopsided in the game's first 20 years.

REPLACEMENT BALL

Frustrated in their attempts to gain a fairer form of unrestricted free agency, NFL players went on strike for the second time in league history on September 22, 1987. The work stoppage forced the cancellation of all Week 3 games and brought about three subsequent weeks of what came to be called "replacement football." With their regular players on strike, team owners quickly assembled new squads consisting of former NFL and United States Football League players, castoffs and amateur dreamers willing to cross a picket line. The result? There was a wide discrepancy in the quality of the teams, depending largely on how much effort management invested in assembling new rosters. The defending Super Bowl champion Giants, for example, lost all three of their replacement games (which counted in the standings) and never recovered once their regular players returned, finishing the season 6-9 and out of the playoffs. The Redskins, meanwhile, went 3-0 in replacement ball, helping to propell them to an 11-4 regular-season finish en route to the club's second Super Bowl title in six years.

GIANTS AND BILLS GO DOWN TO THE WIRE

One year after the most lopsided Super Bowl ever, the Giants and Bills staged the closest, with New York edging Buffalo, 20-19, at Tampa Stadium in Super Bowl 25 when Bills kicker Scott Norwood missed a 47-yard field goal attempt with eight seconds left. Although Norwood wore the goat horns afterward, his teammates did little early in the contest to prevent the game from coming down to a last-minute kick. A Buffalo offense that had scored a league-high 428 points during the regular season and 95 in the first two playoff games did little in its biggest test of the season. Only running back Thurman Thomas (135 yards rushing) had what could be considered a superior game. The Giants' offense, meanwhile, put together scoring drives of 87, 75 and 74 yards. A 14-play, 75-yard drive that took 9 minutes, 29 seconds off the clock went into the books as the most time-consuming drive in Super Bowl history.

COWBOYS HIT THE HEIGHTS AGAIN

Three years after hitting the lowest point in franchise history, the Dallas Cowboys were back on top of the football world following a 52-17 romp over Buffalo in Super Bowl 27. In their fourth year under Jimmy Johnson, who replaced legendary coach Tom Landry following an ownership change in February 1989, the Cowboys won a franchise-record 13 regular season games and rolled through the playoffs, beating the Eagles, 49ers and Bills by a combined score of 116-47. Troy Aikman, the first player Johnson drafted after taking over, was superb in the playoffs, compiling an NFL-record 116.7 quarterback rating in the three games. With the win Johnson joined Paul Brown as the only men to coach championship teams in both college and the NFL.

MONTANA IN THE MIDWEST

Although he was unable to take the Chiefs to the same heights he did the San Francisco 49ers a decade earlier, Joe Montana closed out his illustrious career with two relatively productive, if injury plagued, seasons in Kansas City. Montana, who never completely recovered from injuries suffered in the 1990 NFC title game against the Giants (broken right hand, bruised sternum) that forced him to miss the entire 1991 season and all but one game in '92, played only 38 of 64 quarters for the Chiefs in 1993. Nevertheless, he was the AFC's No. 2-rated quarterback and guided Kansas City to within one game of the Super Bowl. Using the old Montana magic, he spearheaded come-from-behind playoff victories over the Steelers and Oilers before the Chiefs finally succumbed, 30-13, at Buffalo in the AFC championship game.

LOMBARDI WOULD BE PROUD

Six coaches and 29 years after last winning the Super Bowl, the Green Bay Packers were NFL champions again following a 35-21 victory over New England in Super Bowl 31. The title was not unexpected, despite the many years that had passed since the franchise's last title in Vince Lombardi's final season as coach. The Packers scored the most points of any team and allowed the fewest en route to finishing the 1996 regular season at 13-3. They had the league's best player in quarterback Brett Favre and arguably its best coach (Mike Holmgren) and best general manager (Ron Wolf). Just as important, the '96 Packers were a playoff-hardened team, having lost to Dallas in the NFC title game the previous year and been ousted in the second round in each of the two seasons before that.

ELWAY, BRONCOS REACH THE TOP

One year after a humbling first-round playoff loss at home to Jacksonville, the Denver Broncos made sure history did not repeat, whipping the Jaguars, 42-17, in a first-round rematch at Mile High Stadium. That was impressive, but what happened next was more impressive: three straight road playoff victories and the franchise's first-ever Super Bowl title. Prior to the three-game winning streak, the Broncos had won just one other road playoff game in their 37-year history. Although running back Terrell Davis was the Broncos' star and won Super Bowl 32 MVP honors, their leader was veteran quarterback John Elway, who finally scaled the NFL mountaintop after three crushing Super Bowl defeats earlier in his career. Denver thus became the first AFC team in 14 years and only the second wild-card team to win the Super Bowl.

RAMS, RAVENS MAKE DRAMATIC TURNAROUNDS

The ability of teams to turn around their fortunes seemingly overnight was never more evident than during the 1999 and 2000 seasons. The St. Louis Rams, 4-12 in 1998, and the Baltimore Ravens, 8-8 in 1999, rebounded to win Super Bowls the following season. The turnaround of the Rams was truly astonishing. In danger of finishing with the NFL's worst record of the 1990s, the Rams—45-99 from 1990 through '98—scored a league-high 526 points (third most in NFL history and 241 more than they had the year before) and won 16 games (including playoffs) by an average score of 33-13. The Ravens, meanwhile, used defense to win their first league championship. Baltimore allowed just 165 points—fewest ever in a 16-game season—en route to becoming the fourth wild-card team to win the Super Bowl.

*This chart includes passer rating points for all leaders, although the same rating system was not used for determining leading quarterbacks prior to 1973. The old system was less equitable, yet similar to the new in that the rating was based on percentage of completions, touchdown passes, percentage of interceptions and average gain in yards.

†Brunell and Jeff George of Oakland (521, 290, 3917, 29, 9), tied with 91.2 rating points, but rounded to another decimal place, Brunell's rating is higher, 91.17 to 91.15.

*This chart includes passer rating points for all leaders, although the same rating system was not used for determining leading quarterbacks prior to 1973. The old system was less equitable, yet similar to the new in that the rating was based on percentage of completions, touchdown passes, percentage of interceptions and average gain in yards.

AFL

Eight players were selected as territorial picks by the AFL prior to its first draft. The actual draft was held in two stages consisting of a total of 53 rounds. The draft order was not announced. Shortly after the draft, Minneapolis withdrew from the league when it was offered an NFL franchise (to begin play in 1961). Oakland was then allowed to join as the eighth AFL team, and it received the Minneapolis draft list. Before Oakland was admitted to the league, however, other AFL teams had signed a number of players drafted by Minneapolis. The AFL then held an allocation draft for Oakland. Each AFL team protected 11 players and Oakland was allowed to choose 24 unprotected players. Below is the list of AFL territorial picks.

Team	Player selected	Pos.	College
Boston	Gerhard Schwedes	HB	Syracuse
Buffalo	Richie Lucas	QB	Penn State
Dallas	Don Meredith	QB	SMU
Denver	Roger LeClerc	C	Trinity (Ct.)
Houston	Billy Cannon	B	Louisiana State
Los Angeles	Monty Stickles	E	Notre Dame
Minneapolis	Dale Hackbart	QB	Wisconsin
New York	George Izo	QB	Notre Dame

Total number of territorial picks: 8.

Total number of regular draft picks (including territorial): 424.

Total number of allocation picks for Oakland franchise: 24
